8 Killed, 11 Marooned as 3 Planes Crash

'Mercy' Plane Wrecked

Two Survive B-29 Accident

(Compiled From Wire Services)

A series of airplane crashes left eight persons dead today and 11 others marooned on a treacherous ice floe in Hudson's bay.

The latest accident occurred at the Great Falls air base in Montana where a B-29 crashed last night, killing four crewmen and injuring eight others.

Four other persons were killed Thursday night when an Alaska Airlines DC-3 crashed on a snow-covered hilltop about 150 miles southwest of Anchorage. Two persons, including the pilot and one passenger, survived the crash.

Peter Palmero hung for 20 hours upside down before he and Capt. R. D. Land, the pilot, were cut free yesterday from the wreckage.

Four others died when the plane piled into a hillside on the Kenai peninsula.

Rescue crews reported the body of Stewardess Lucina Nims of Everson, Wash., had not been found. Feminine clothing was seen in a tangle of debris in the middle of the wreckage and it was assumed her body was there. Also aboard were Co-Pilot Robert Stevens of Seattle, Roscoe Spears of Dillingham, Alaska, and Stanley Hillman of Anchorage.

Palmero, a San Francisco man, was in critical condition and Land, whose home is Anchorage, in serious condition at a hospital here. Both had frozen feet along with their other injuries.

BEGIN RESCUE WORK

A ski-equipped airplane will attempt today to evacuate the 11 men marooned on the isolated ice floe in the Hudson bay when their "mercy" plane crash-landed.

Wing Commander A. Walmsly, in charge of the rescue mission at Churchill, said the plane would try to land on the floe which is separated from the shore by a mile of water and thin ice. He said the plane carries only five to seven passengers and would have to make two or three trips to rescue the men.

The downed plane, a Royal Canadian Air Force Dakota, crash-landed Thursday on a return trip to Winnipeg from Baffin Island where it had picked up two sick men, Wireless Operator Harold Dunn from the Arctic bay base and an Eskimo. The Dakota carried a crew of nine. None were reported injured and supplies were dropped to them by plane.

Walmsly said a rescue by glider plane would be attempted if the ski plane was not successful.

The B-29 crash occurred shortly after the plane took off on a training mission. Crash crews raced to the scene, five miles east of Great Falls and found two men wandering dazedly near the wreckage.

The plane crashed into a wheat field. Both wings were sheared off by the impact and the fuselage was broken in two.

A survivor made his way five miles to the Great Falls base to report the crash. Ambulances and fire trucks were sent from Great Falls immediately, but the wreckage could not be located.

It finally was found by air planes from Great Falls, which dropped flares to guide the ground-search parties.

Four Drowned As Tiny Boat Upsets

ALGONAC, Mich., — (UP) — Four persons, including three Indians returning to their island home, were drowned last night when a small boat capsized on the St. Clair river. One man was saved.

State police said heavy waves foundered their 14-foot rowboat, equipped with a small outboard motor, about 500 feet offshore as Norman Smith of Algonac was taking them to Walpole island.

Sweep Atlantic For Long Overdue Craft

MIAMI, FLA. — (UP) — Coast guard and air force planes and boats searched Atlantic waters between Florida and the Bahama islands today for a cabin cruiser missing seven days with five men aboard.

The cruiser "Driftwood," described as a "very seaworthy craft" left Port Everglades, Fla., last Friday for a trip to Bimini island and was not seen again.

Officials Nab Club 'Bandits'

(Compiled From Wire Services)

LANCASTER — The first public demonstration of a campaign to wipe out gambling in drinking places was conducted personally last night in Lancaster by enforcement chief Anthony A. Rutkowski.

A former Cleveland municipal judge, Rutkowski was accompanied by William Galayda, inspector in charge of the Columbus district. The raid in the Lancaster Eagles lodge netted six slot machines.

Two machines were returned to Columbus as evidence and four were taken to the Lancaster police station. Explaining that he was on a routine check, Rutkowski said he visited two other clubs before reaching the Lancaster organization.

"We walked into the Eagles lodge," said Rutkowski, "and there were six slot machines. Three of them were being played."

Rutkowski, who took over his job Jan. 10, said he and Galayda visited several Columbus places, then drove to Lancaster, where they went into three private clubs.

He did not name the other two clubs, but he indicated he found nothing illegal there.

Rutkowski said he talked with an Eagles trustee.

"The trustee told me the club was taking from $380 to $400 a week from the six machines," Rutkowski said.

HINTS MORE ACTION

"It will be my policy to stamp out all gambling in places that hold liquor permits, especially gambling by slot machines. And that includes private clubs," Rutkowski said.

The Lancaster raid was the first positive evidence that state liquor agents are operating on a stepped-up program to stamp out gambling, the avowed determination of Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

The governor made that aim public in announcing the appointment of Oscar L. Fleckner of Springfield as state liquor director. He referred to Fleckner as a "racket buster" in tribute to Fleckner's work in the state securities division some years back.

A rumbling of things to come came earlier this week when Canton observers reported the sudden fade-out of all slot machines and other forms of gambling from liquor places.

The story in Canton was that a squad of liquor agents visited the permit holders' place and "put the heat on."

Rutkowski declined comment on the Canton story, except to repeat his determination to stop gambling.

Taft Urges Budget Cut

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Sen. Robert A. Taft, Republican policy leader, was set today for a showdown fight to trim $3,000,000,000 from President Truman's budget and to balk any increase in taxes.

Taxes are high enough, the Ohio Republican said. And he thought at least $3,000,000,000 could be sliced from Mr. Truman's proposed fiscal 1950 budget.

The government now takes so much money in taxes, Taft said, that people have ost much of their "power to spend their own money."

In his State of the Union message the President requested that Congress boost taxes $4,000,000,000. Half of this would come from increased levies on corporations and the other half from higher taxes on the middle and upper income earners.

As for reducing Mr. Truman's budget, Taft said about $1,000,000,000 could be cut from requests for the armed services. The rest of the reduction, he said, would come by trimming other items from 10 to 20 per cent.

Cite Price Slash

CINCINNATI, — (AP) — An eight to ten per cent price reduction on most of its standardized steel and aluminum buildings was announced yesterday by the Steelcraft Manufacturing Co. Increased efficiency in production was the reason given for the price slash.

Fall Kills Woman, 67

Mrs. Emma Schaefer Dies of Head Injury

Mrs. Emma Schaefer, 67, died about 5 p. m. yesterday as the result of a fall down a flight of stairs at her home at 120 North Walnut street.

Police were called to investigate after Mrs. Betty Pearl discovered Mrs. Schaefer lying at the bottom of the stairs. Dr. D. C. Lavender, county coroner, ruled that death came as a result of a skull fracture.

Born May 12, 1881 at Canal Winchester, she spent the greater part of her life in the Mansfield area. She was a member of the Salvation Army for 50 years.

She is survived by three sons, John, of Crestline and George and Homer, of Mansfield; a sister, Ida Donohue, of Toledo and 15 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at the Wappner funeral home at 1 p. m. Monday with Major William J. Jones, of the Salvation Army officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Russians Flay Truman's Speech

MOSCOW — (INS) — Moscow newspapers carried a half-column dispatch today on President Truman's inaugural address, which was termed "a ferocious attack" on communism.

The Tass article said that despite Truman's assertion that all people have the right to think freely, he represented communism as "a preacher of war" which the news agency said was not the actual case.

A Gypsy Birthday

Her Roast Pig Has Mouthful of Cash!

By NITA BRANSON

Rosie Stevens was 19 years old yesterday.

And her birthday celebration was something definitely out of the ordinary Mansfield world.

You see, Rosie is a Brazilian Gypsy and her parents and friends were also observing a religious holiday in honor of the birth of John the Baptist.

The little storeroom at 261 North Main street where the Stevens family lives, had been decorated with bright-colored calicoes, the walls lined with the gay flowered stuff and curtains hung up to divide the rooms.

Early Friday morning friends began to arrive from Cleveland, Springfield, Canton and Toledo for the annual festival and to honor the pretty, brown-eyed girl, younger child of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Stevens.

By 1 p. m. everything was in readiness for the feast. The little pig had been stuffed and barbecued and the table laden with food. In the mouth of the roasted pig had been stuffed, not a rosy apple, but $100 in gift money for Rosie.

In honor of her daughter's birthday, Mrs. Stevens had fashioned a frock of pink, with brocaded satin skirt and smooth satin blouse. Around Rosie's neck her family and friends hung a long string of gold coins, "Russian Ducats," Rosie's father called them, and a string of pearls.

The festivities continued until 11 p. m. During the afternoon and evening the Stevens family entertained their guests with good food, dancing and a lot of fun.

Eli Stevens is a coppersmith by trade. He and his family have lived in Mansfield for the past six months and hope to make their permanent home here, with occasional tours on the road in summer. The son, Richard and his wife and their eight little children, live on Ashland road.

"I'm an American citizen," Eli said proudly. "Since 1904."

Rosie helps her mother in the "mind reading" business which they carry on in a little curtained room at the side of their home.

Rosie has become a friend of Russell and Mary Gimbel, directors at Friendly House. The Gimbels have been invited to participate in approaching wedding festivities for the Stevens' dark-eyed daughter.

But Rosie isn't talking about the wedding now. One festival at a time was quite enough to think about, she said.

Question Youth In Bonus Check Thefts

CINCINNATI — (INS) — John Henderson, 20-year-old Cincinnati youth, was being questioned by police and postal authorities today in connection with the theft of more than $1,000 worth of veterans' bonus checks.

The youth admitted stealing and cashing the checks within the past three weeks.

FCC Rapped for Ignoring Lamb Book

(Editor's Note: Here is the last in a series of articles reviewing the 10,000-word report of a special congressional investigating committee which found that the Federal Communications commission has usurped legislative and judicial powers, seeks to control radio programs, browbeats applicants for permits, and has been lax in checking on the qualifications of applicants.)

Toledo Lawyer Edward Lamb's book "The Planned Economy In Soviet Russia" received attention of the congressional select committee which recently concluded a six-month investigation of the Federal Communications commission, the government agency which controls radio and which awarded Lamb numerous radio licenses.

The committee delved into the record of the hearing conducted in Mansfield when Lamb appeared before an FCC examiner in connection with his application for a Mansfield FM station. The committee's report states:

"On October 1, 1946, a hearing was held by the FCC in connection with the application of Edward Lamb for a radio license to operate a station in Mansfield, Ohio, at which hearing the examiners questioned Lamb regarding his book on The Planned Economy In Soviet Russia, asking him if he was the author of the words:

"If the American planned economy is to be achieved, it becomes evident that those who produce, the workers and the farmers, and those who defend, i.e., the militiamen, through joint action and organization jointly must assume title to the means of production.

"Lamb acknowledged he was the author and stated:

"That was my belief at the time it was printed. Obviously it was or I wouldn't have written it."

Pointing out that Lamb's book praising Russia and the communist economic system of Russia was published by Dorrance & Co., Inc., in 1934, the committee declares that "this book should be read in full to understand the author's attitude toward the Russian

Stage Set For Rural 'C. of C.'

Plan Formation Of Rural Unit

First steps were taken last night to form a farmers' "Chamber of Commerce" to promote better understanding between business men and farmers in Mansfield and Richland county.

Five representative Richland countians were named on a committee to plan organization of a "Farm Club" as a subsidiary of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce.

Appointed to the committee were Guy Taylor, head of the Triple-A; Thomas H. Sheppard, president of the Richland Rural Life Center; C. N. McGrew, county agent; Lewis F. Rinehart, head of the county fair board, and Burr Knaus, manager of the 1,000-acre Charles Hoffman farm.

They were named after a lengthy discussion at the C. of C. assembly rooms in a meeting called by Dean Dickerson, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Ruhland D. Isaly, chairman of the C. of C.'s agricultural committee, presided.

The farmer committee will confer with Richland county residents to get their reaction to the proposed club and to work out a program of mutual interest.

Ground work is expected to be laid between now and next Tuesday when the committee will meet for a final check and further discussion of the program. The findings will be presented at a meeting of Richland county farmers which has been called by McGrew for Jan. 31.

In calling the meeting, Dickerson said he felt that rural residents should share in city planning since the production of food and the farmer's share in such production is one of the most important parts of any community living.

Third Blow Hits Board

Liquor Confiscation Declared Illegal

COLUMBUS, — (AP) — It's illegal for the state to confiscate liquor in places where permits have been revoked, says a Franklin county court ruling.

Common Pleas Judge Joseph M. Clifford—dropping a third legal hot potato in the lap of State Liquor department management—announced the decision yesterday.

Judge Clifford gave the ruling in deciding the case of Louis W. Grieb of Springfield whose D-5 permit for the Night Hawk cafe was revoked March 1, 1946.

Two sections of the Ohio liquor law, he said, violated the state and U. S. constitutions. He declared "they authorized the taking of and confiscation of property without due process of law and without compensation..."

Judge Clifford said Grieb is entitled to have the liquor returned to him or recover a fair value for it.

If the court's decision stands, Ohio could be subject to sundry claims totaling thousands of dollars for liquors seized in past years, it was estimated.

THREE DIE IN FIRE

CHICAGO, — (UP) — Three persons were killed, at least 10 others injured, and more than $500,000 worth of property destroyed in separate fires that struck an apartment house, a residence and a factory in the Chicago area early today.

Beards Soon To Flourish In Ironton

IRONTON — (AP) — Bearded men will be a common sight on Ironton's streets for many months to come if a Junior Chamber of Commerce plan carries through.

The Jaycees yesterday voted to let their beards grow after Feb. 1, preparatory to Ironton's centennial celebration next October.

There were some objections to the plan from the single members — and wives of the married men who favored the proposal have not been heard from.

North China Stronghold Collapses

Reds Entering City of Peiping

NANKING — (INS) — Chinese government forces pulled out of Peiping in north China today to form a "people's defiance army" as new acting-President Li Tsung-Jen prepared to send a peace delegation to communist headquarters.

News that the defense of the government's last strongpoint in north China was crumbling followed by a little more than 24 hours Chiang Kai-Shek's dramatic announcement that he was "retiring."

(Reuthers reported that communists are already taking over the great north China city of Peiping. The news agency, in Nanking dispatch said that the nationalist commander in Peiping, Gen. Fu Tso-Yi, had resigned.)

At the same time, a semi-official source said Premier Sun Fo and his entire cabinet will resign from office despite Li's plea to "hold on and assist him in passing this critical juncture."

Peiping dispatches reaching Nanking said communist siege forces which have held Peiping in a ring of steel for weeks withdrew 30 li (about 10 miles) from the city's ancient walls to permit government troops to pull out.

The action was believed to be the result of peace conferences held last week by a Peiping peace mission which crossed communist lines.

The Nationalist 16th army group and the 4th cavalry division started their withdrawal this morning. Nationalist forces will concentrate at Huangsze, Langsang and Huangthun, according to reports reaching Nanking, to be reorganized into a "people's defiance army."

Gen. Hsu Yung-Chaung, Chiang's most trusted advisor, was reported to have reached Peiping yesterday to give instructions for the withdrawal to north China commander Fu Tso-Yi.

Thought Was Good, Action Unappreciated

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(UP)—L. L. Allen, a grocer, was standing in front of his store when he saw a driverless automobile rolling down the street. He jumped into the car and pulled the emergency brake.

As he got out a man walked up. He said he owned the car.

"Well," Allen said proudly, "I just stopped it."

"Yes, I know," the man replied. "I was pushing it."

Freedom Train Ends Journey

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The Freedom Train wound up its 16-month nationwide tour today.

The train is scheduled to be open for visitors just an hour, and then it will be closed by brief ceremonies, with the marine corps band participating. Monday armored cars will be sent to the train's Washington siding to carry the precious documents aboard to safekeeping.

Then the cars will be taken to Wilmington, Del., where they will remain in the yards. The American Heritage foundation, sponsor of the train, has expressed the hope that Congress will create a permanent commission to operate it.

Cattle, Sheep Starving

Emergency Air Supply Planned

Even as plans were being readied for an aerial supply program aimed at saving $20,000,000 worth of starving western cattle and sheep, new snow storms today added to the misery in the already hard-hit Rocky Mountain states.

An estimated 1,000,000 head of stock, many cut off from food for several days, were periled by the latest in a series of raging blizzards and sub-zero temperatures.

As the mercury plunged again in the plains states, the Nebraska communities of O'Neill and Hartington appealed to Gov. Val Peterson for help. The Holt county Red Cross asked relief headquarters at St. Louis to send army planes to drop hay to livestock and fuel to farm homes. Hartington officials said some roads had been blocked nine weeks.

The air force, meanwhile, promised to organize a "feedlift" of planes to try to save the western herds starving for lack of feed.

Intermittent snow storms hit southern Idaho and pushed into northern Utah which was expected to be covered by the storm area later today. High winds also caused snow in eastern Nevada to drift over roads that had just been cleared so that feed trucks could reach starving herds.

In eastern Nevada alone, it was reported, about 120,000 head of livestock are threatened with starvation.

FROZEN UPRIGHT

It was not known how many animals had died already but farmers told of whole herds found dead, their carcasses held upright by the supporting snow. Other herds died in barnyard lots as supply lines were jammed by big drifts.

In Nevada one-fifth of the state's cattle and half its sheep were marooned and starving. Strong winds all day yesterday caused snow to drift anew, blocking roads that plows had just opened.

Heavy snow fell in Elko county where 155,000 cattle, half of the state's herds, were grazing. The Elko ranges had escaped heavy snows thus far but stockmen said the storm might put the herds there in the same plight as those in other counties.

Cheyenne experts estimated that 55,200 cattle and 105,000 sheep died in the big blizzard earlier this month. The cattle were valued at $6,900,000 and the sheep at $2,100,000. No figures were available on how many were doomed unless feed supplies reached them soon.

Peace Talks Lose Ground

RHODES — (UP) — Negotiations for a Palestine armistice between Egypt and Israel may break down and war may be resumed unless one side or the other makes substantial concessions, informed quarters reported today.

Acting Palestine Mediator Dr. Ralph Bunche conferred with the Egyptians and Israeli delegations separately yesterday and then with the heads of both delegations together, but little progress was reported.

The stumbling block is the question of establishing demarcation lines in the Negev, behind which the opposing forces would be withdrawn. The question has been under discussion all week.

Usually reliable sources indicated the Israelis were insisting that the Egyptians withdraw completely from southern Palestine, including the coastal strip where the Egyptians still are holding Gaza as their main base.

Costain's 'High Tower' At Library

Historical Novel Among New Arrivals

Six new novels will appear on the shelves at Mansfield Public library Monday.

Heading the list will be "High Tower", by Thomas Costain, the author's first book with a New World setting, based on the story of the LeMayme brothers who played an important part in the history of French Canada and the founding of New Orleans.

The romantic interest is furnished by two fictional characters, Philippe, an orphan, and Felicite, a ward of the LeMaymes.

MARY WAKEFIELD, by Mazo de la Roche, gives us another episode in the saga of the Whiteoaks. This one goes back to the time when Meg and Renny were children, and Ernest engages lovely young Mary Wakefield to be their governess. The children's widowed father finds her charming and this is the story of their romance.

IMPORTANT PEOPLE, by Robert Van Gelder, is a novel of the sophisticated world of New York just after World War II. The main character is Dixon West who finds himself involved with a childhood sweetheart, a hit-and-run accident in Harlem, and the management of the family magazine.

AVENUE OF STONE, by Pamela Hansford Johnson, is a novel of post-war England. The chief character is an old virago, Lady Archer, as seen through the eyes of her step-son. She has been a great beauty, and dreads the approach of old age. Attempting to ward it off, she takes into her home a worthless veteran who gets what he can from her and then leaves.

Other fiction:

SAC PRAIRIE PEOPLE, Derleth; FRIGHTENED CHILD, Leyon.

There is wide variation also in the quality of writing and of observation. The best is very good indeed; the worst loosely concieved and slapped together.

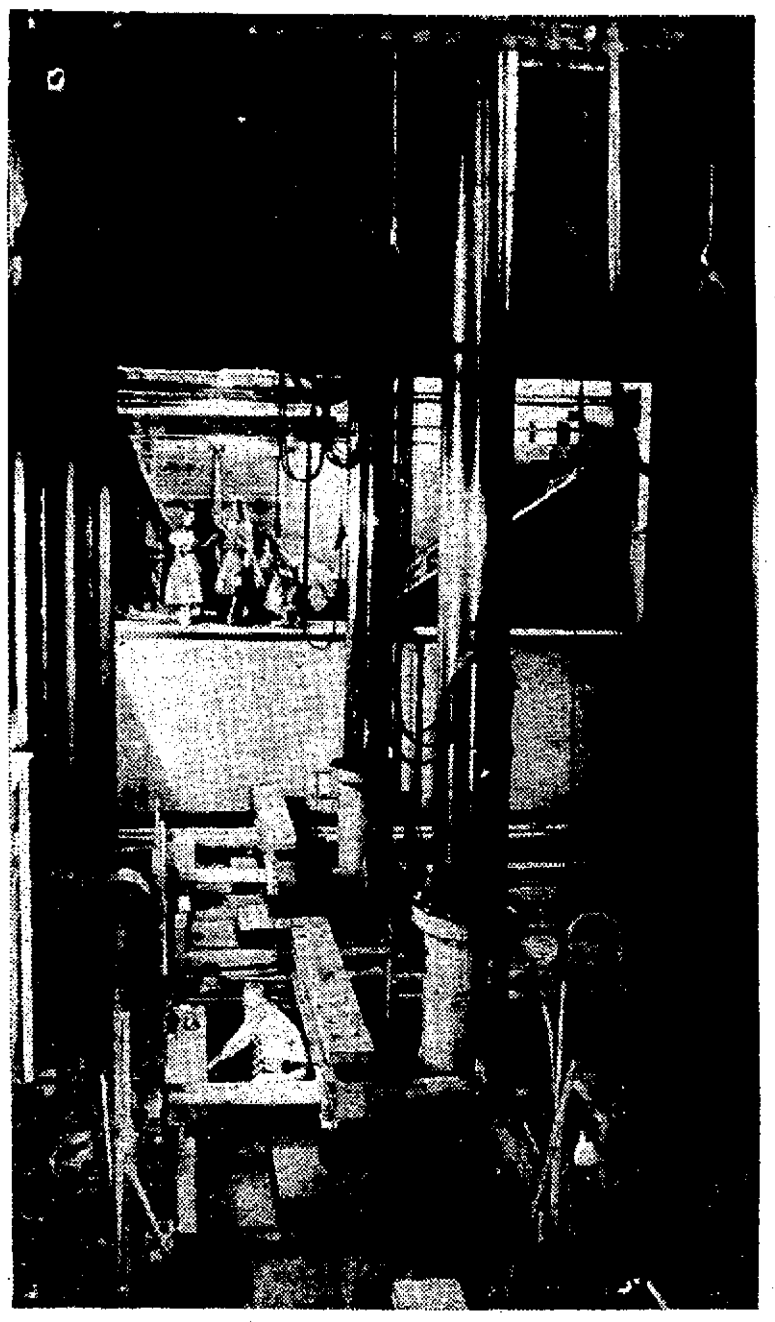
Real Stars of New York Stage Are Buried

Giant Pistons, Set In Rock, Lift Stages



UP AND UP—These hydraulic pistons tote 96,000-pound "payload."

LIGHTS!—A few of the 206 spotlights. Total wattage—1,543,080.

By JEROME DREYER
(Central Press Correspondent)

NEW YORK—The stage was crowded with scores of whirling dancers and gaily garbed singers all blending into the sort of extravaganza that has made the Music Hall here in New York famous the world over. It was a winter scene and the wind howled and confetti snowflakes drifted across the stage.

The audience applauded enthusiastically as the scene reached its climax, but their enthusiasm reached even a louder note when the stage suddenly divided into three sections, each 70 feet long and from 3 to 12 feet high.

However, amid all the applause, there was one dissenting voice, that belonging to a fellow named Bill Kells who spends most of his working hours beneath the huge stage.

Bill was picking confetti from his hair and muttering dire threats as he watched the pieces of paper drift onto the six immense steel pistons that are his charges and which are responsible for making the stage do anything but turn handsprings.

SET IN CASINGS buried 67 feet in the rock of Manhattan, these hydraulic pistons, capable of lifting 96,000 pounde, are the least known but probably the most important member of the theater's cast.

Only with them can dancing girls and orchestra rise into view and disappear without warning and turn up where least expected. Among the riders on this perambulating stage have been famous opera stars and violinists—and even six wary elephants.

One routine called for the six animals to stand in a graduated formation, two of them on each of the three steps. At first rehearsal one elephant came onstage at normal level until a foot touched the movable part of the floor.

From that point on, nothing could budge him. Instinctively he knew that there was a Hollow space below. He and his co-performers went into a huddle and when it was over one of the confreres gingerly extended a foot to again test the platform. Then he moved his entire weight onto it.

When the expected did not happen, he told his pals in elephant language that all was well. Only then did the herd move to their appointed spots.

Kells shares the confidence of the elephants as he unconcernedly weaves his way through the maze of pipes and motors that tangle the pit below the stage.

In the pipes about Bill's legs thousands of gallons of water flow at 400 pounds per square inch to provide smooth hydraulic motive power for the stage-lifting pistons.

Almost as versatile as the pereginating stage is the proscenium curtain, a shimmering mass of gold fabric weighing three tons and requiring 2,000 yards of fireproof lining and a mile of steel cable to put it through its gyrations.

Sewn into the fabric are 13 separate motor control cables, making it possible for the curtain to be lengthened or shortened into hundreds of different contours.

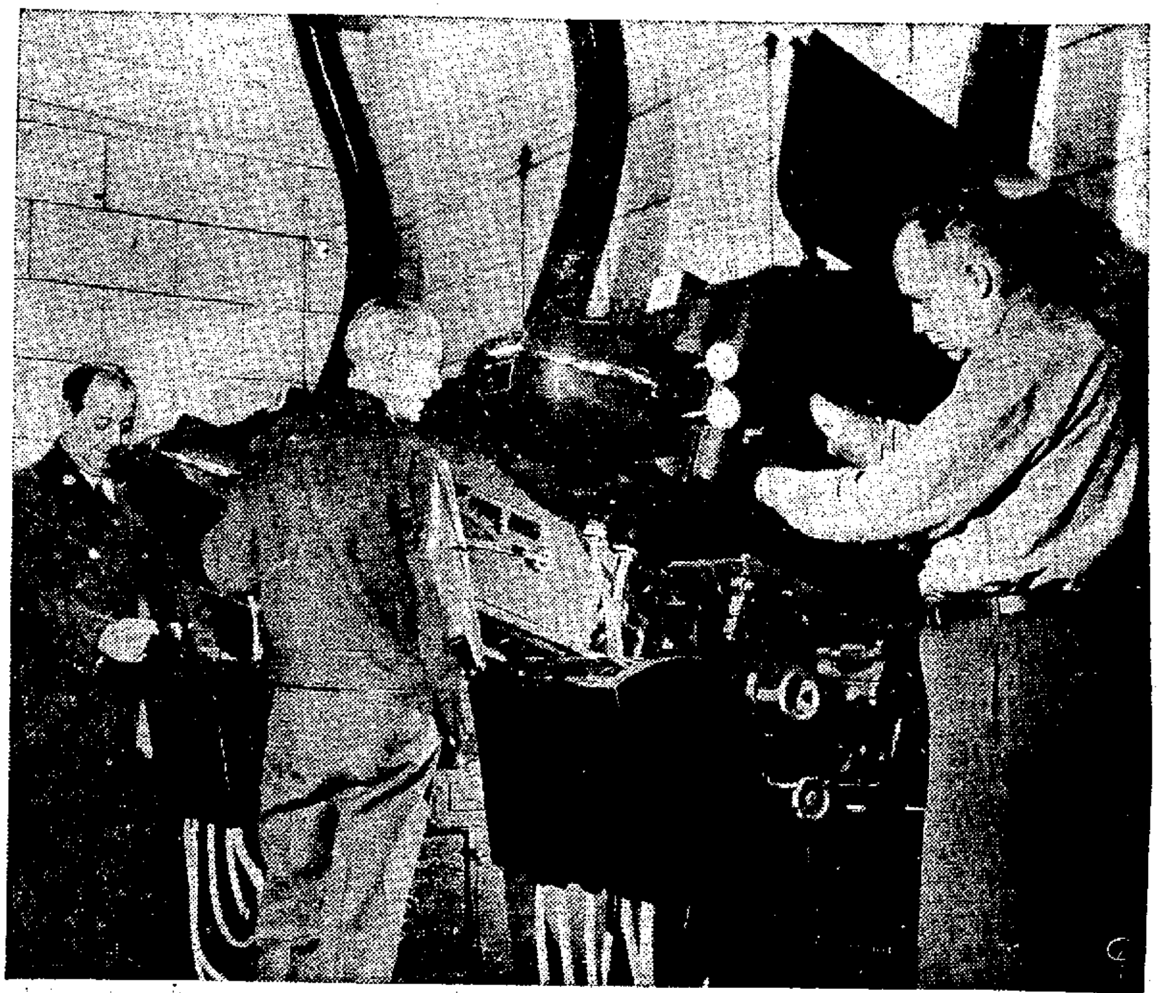
INCIDENTALLY, the electricity used in this task, along with that required to supply power to the rest of the theater, is enough to supply the needs of a town with a population of between 5,000 and 10,000.

Eight stories above the stage is one of Manhattan's most colorful spots, a landscaped roof playground where the theater's 600 permanent employes may play games and relax in the sun. For the athletically inclined there are handball courts, tennis courts and other areas for volley ball and shuffle board. Those not sports inclined can retire to colorfully striped beach and deck chairs and swings.

Usually, though, activity is the keynote, with perhaps a hot game of volley ball between singers and dancers, with a gallery of both rooting vociferously.

Then, in the midst of the cheering, an alien voice breaks in over the public address system and four words—"Twenty minutes to overture" — abruptly bring the game to a halt, to be resumed after the next stage show.



PROJECTORS—There are 14 of 'em in Music Hall. About 24,000,000 feet of film run through annually.

Questions Compulsion In Security Pact

Could not the State Department reconsider the position taken last Friday in the remarks made by its press officer, Mr. McDermott, that the nations of the Atlantic community must sign the proposed North Atlantic Security Pact if they are to receive American support and assistance?

Is it wise, desirable, and right to treat countries which border on the Soviet military orbit in the same way as countries which do not? This security pact, we must remember, is being negotiated by five European countries and two North American—none of which has a common military frontier with the Red army or with the army of a Soviet satellite state. Must we not, therefore, consider with discriminating and judicious care our policy under the pact towards countries like Sweden and Norway, like Austria and Italy, like Greece and Turkey and Iran and like Western Germany?

I would not argue that none of these exposed countries should be permitted to join, or that none should be invited to join. But I would argue that for the present at least, while the original members of the alliance are as yet so little organized and equipped, it is not wise to press the countries of the borderland to enter the alliance.

It is known that McDermott's remarks were addressed immediately to Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. They are discussing their relation to the alliance. Now their problem is not simply whether in return for adherence to the pact, they are to receive arms from us. Mr. McDermott's statement says that "It is natural that such supplies as may be available (in the United States) should go to countries associated with us in collective defense arrangements."

What is meant by collective defense arrangements? Let us be frank with ourselves about this since the meaning of these words is fully understood in Moscow. Collective defense arrangements do not mean only the signing of the pact and then the furnishing of American arms to Norway and Denmark. They mean also the development of Anglo-American sea and air installations in Scandinavia.

ADVANTAGES PLAIN

The strategic advantages to the West in case of war are evident. But what we have to consider, before we insist upon them, is what Russia can do, and is likely to do, in the period—inevitably a matter of some years—before the western alliance is a military reality, and not merely a plan, a pledge, and a hope.

It is difficult to suppose that Russia will do nothing, once the Scandinavian countries have entered into "collective defense arrangements" to create sea and air bases on the northern flank of the Soviet Union. For these bases would open the Baltic to Allied naval forces and would advance the bases of Allied air power very near to vital areas of the Soviet Union.

The obvious Soviet reply would be to invoke her treaty with Finland, then to occupy Finland, and thus to advance her military bases within striking distance of Sweden. When we realize that Sweden is much the strongest military nation in Scandinavia, that it has what many consider the Baltic, and an armaments industry which is far from negligible, are we not bound to think twice before we take any steps to bring the Red Army right up to the frontiers of Sweden?

Yet that is just what we must be prepared to see happen if we press the Scandinavian countries to enter an alliance which calls for the establishment of Allied bases meant to be used in war. What looks to the strategical theorists like a military asset could be turned into a serious military liability.

For if as a result of our pressure the security of Scandinavia were ever more seriously threatened than it is today, we should be obliged, as a matter of honor and interest, to commit very large forces to the defense of Scandinavia. They would have to be drawn from our strategical reserves which, considering all our other obligations, are none too large.

In making this critical argument, I hope I shall not seem to be an opponent of the pact and of the policy of organizing the Atlantic Community. For I have long believed that the salvation of the western world, and the chance of an eventual modus vivendi with the Soviet Union, depend upon the successful organization of the Atlantic Community.

QUOTES FROM BOOK

It is the custom these days to test men's views on current issues by what they thought and said in the past on the subject of our relations with Russia. Were they always tough, or were they once soft, and have they changed their minds, and why? In the winter of 1944, almost a year before the Yalta conference and while our relations with the U. S. S. R appeared to be reasonably good, I wrote a book called "U. S. War Aims," from which I am quoting a short passage:

"There are those who hold that the Russians will for a long time to come be absorbed in the internal development of their vast country, and that the Soviet Union will be very nearly as self-centered as was the United States during the nineteenth century. This is one hypothesis. There is no way of proving (i. e. 1944) that it is correct.

"The other view is, of course, that Soviet Russia is an aggressive state which in various combinations fuses the ambitions of the Czarist Empire with the projects of the Third International. There is no way of proving (i. e. 1944) that this hypothesis is incorrect.

"But a foreign policy ought not to be based on a blind choice between two unprovable hypotheses. We need to be prepared for all the eventualities that can reasonably be anticipated. This is the elementary rule of prudence in statecraft—which is to work for the best that is possible and to be prepared for the worst that may happen.

"For this reason, whatever may be our private guesses, I hold that our true policy with Russia does not require us to prejudge the question of whether Russia is to be a dynamic expanding power or a satisfied and quiet one. On either hypothesis, or any variation between extreme optimism and extreme pessimism, we shall serve our vital interests by maintaining and perfecting the Atlantic community.

For if the worst that men fear is going to happen, it will be upon the solidarity of western Europe and the Americas that we shall have to rely. This solidarity is our ultimate insurance. But it is also the best possible foundation upon which to work for good relations with the Soviet Union. For in the last analysis nothing is so certain to promote the will to keep the peace as the certainty that nothing could be decided and nothing could be gained by war."

Senate Filibuster Must Be Cast Out

Unutterable gall and a willingness to jeopardize the nation's reputation at a time of deepening world crisis are manifest in the threat of seventeen southern senators to filibuster against civil rights legislation and amendment of the Senate rules. The Dixiecrats—both those who had the temerity and bigotry to come out into the open and those who played it safe—were soundly trounced in one of the most humiliating political debacles in American history.

Even the South itself repudiated their racial hatred. The nation as a whole, in one of the most heartening demonstrations of democracy in recent years, showered scorn on the Dixiecrat program.

One would believe that reasonably normal persons, after receiving such a beating, would wake up to the fact that the proposals and theories they espoused were not wanted by the majority of the American people. One would also assume that as good sports they would accept gracefully the verdict against them.

But Senators Russell, Byrd, Ellender, and fourteen other Senators in the upper house plan to do nothing of the sort. With arrogance and impudent disregard of the wishes of the rest of the nation, they now propose to tell the majority of the Senate and the people of the United States that the Dixiecrat program will be enforced no matter what others may say.

The fact that their program parallels in many respects the racial theories of the late Adolf Hitler seems to make this small minority only more determined to have their way. If a halt is not given to their plans, the democratic process will be made ridiculous and impotent at the time when it is being most seriously challenged and tested all over the earth.

Three news stories in the January 13th issue of the Chicago Daily Tribune, itself not noted for liberalism, point up the shamelessness of the proposed filibuster which is scheduled to burst upon the country about the time this column is published. An eight-column front-page headline, DIXIE REBELS SPLIT PARTY, announces the determination of the seventeen southern senators "to fight to the last ditch against any effort to change the Senate rules so that the filibuster, their most potent weapon against civil rights legislation could be abolished".

The second featured story announces Governor Herman Talmadge's plan to revise the election procedures of Georgia to circumvent the recent United States Supreme Court decisions and the subhead of the story reads, "Rigs Up 4 Point 'White Supremacy' Program". The third story provides unfortunate timing for the Dixie rebellion. It tells of nation-wide protest against the farcical trial at Lyons, Georgia of an alleged lyncher of a successful, hard-working Negro salesman during the course of which trial two members of the jury left the jury box to testify as "character" witnesses for the accused.

PLAYED UP BY REDS

What will the reaction of decent Americans, southern as well as northern, be to such arrogance? Involved in the issue is much more than enactment of federal legislation against job discrimination, lynching and the poll tax. If one is to judge by the past, it is quite certain that Russia is industriously utilizing the Moscow radio, press, and the energies of communists around the earth and particularly in continents like Asia and Africa where the inhabitants are colored, citing the Lyons, Georgia acquittal as further evidence of American insincertiy and prejudice against colored peoples.

This propaganda, for which we in America are supplying factual basis, will have a special effect in Indonesia where white Dutchmen arrogantly crush Indonesian freedom, and in South Africa. Nothing will be said, of course, about the Truman civil rights program nor of the numerous agencies and individuals in the United States who work assiduously to end religious and racial injustice. The effect has already been devastating to American prestige.

If recent events of this character are now to be followed by the spectacle of a handful of Senators tying up the United States Senate in an interminable filibuster what can you and I as Americans answer to the challenge which will be made that democracy in the United States is impotent? What can we say when the majority of both the Senate and the people of America are powerless in stopping such obstruction, when the sole spokesmen for America so far as world-wide publicity is concerned are not decent Americans but the bigots?

It has been demonstrated innumerable times during recent years that the present Senate rule requiring that two-thirds of the Senate must vote affirmatively to apply cloture to stop a filibuster is as ineffective as no rule at all when a determined minority resolves to deny the majority of the Senate to vote aye or nay on any given measure. Yet the New York Herald-Tribune reports that "Democratic and Republican leaders made it clear, however, that they would not attempt to alter the two-thirds vote necessary to invoke cloture".

It has become quite clear that only if the American people let their Senators know in no uncertain terms that an end must be made now to the farce and disgrace of filibusters by amendment of the Senate rules to permit the invoking of cloture by a majority vote will definitive action be taken. The alternative is disillusionment among minorities at home and disgrace to America abroad.

Horoscope

For Sunday, January 23

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds splendid encouragement for all Sabbath and ambitious projects, aims and operations in which there is recognition, reward, preferment and appreciation for loyalty, fidelity, particular abilities and high aspirations. Such efforts, based on the pursuit of spirtual or cultural ideals, are excellently stimulated for expression and attaining aid from high places. Dreams, ideals, may prove realities. Glamor, beauty, refined feelings and impulses may uplift.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a fulfillment of high ideals and worthwhile aspirations, based on refined inner emotions or feelings backed up by practical ways and means for making them realities instead of just dreams or abstract visions.

A child born on this day may be richly endowed with high ideals and desires, with capacity, ingenuity and with tangible assistance in securing glamorous goals.

For Monday, January 24

Monday's astrological forecast shows the probability of certain very well-launched projects of more than usual interest, seemingly progressive and promising, materializing. Then ideals, aspirations and special ambitions are likely to be arrested, postponed or frustrated, this tenaciously, with stubborn insistence.

A child born on this day may possess special talents, skill and energy for expressing them, yet may encounter obstacles opposition or frustration. Patience may overcome obstacles.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Drive carefully tonight and tomorrow—what's the use of hurrying to meet an accident?

It is being noted that the first bill passed by the new 81st Congress increased the President's salary and the second granted federal workers in Washington a four-day holiday for the inauguration. No comment.

C. of C. Invites Your Suggestions

"HAVE YOU an idea or suggestion which you think will be beneficial to Mansfield—one that the Chamber of Commerce can get behind and work on?"

That question is being asked by Dean W. Dickerson, who is embarking on a year's work as president of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce and who is anxious to have that organization continue the progressive course which has placed its membership of 1,226 as the largest of any city of comparable size in the country.

While the question has gone out only to Chamber of Commerce members, with request for reply, there seems no reason why it should not be extended to Mansfield's entire citizenship and The News-Journal feels sure Mr. Dickerson and his associates will appreciate ideas or suggestions for the betterment of Mansfield, from non-members as well as members.

The Chamber of Commerce is broadly representative of all phases of Mansfield activities and its potentialities are limited only by the extent to which its large membership can be made a working force for community advancement, supplemented by support of all citizens in furthering a forward-looking program.

A constructive idea or suggestion addressed to Dean W. Dickerson, Chamber of Commerce, Farmers' Bank building, will be appreciated, be it from either a member or non-member of the C. of C.

China Victim of Internal Conflict

GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK has half-heartedly retired from the presidency of China. He left the back door open for his return in the event that peace talks with the Russians fail. It was to permit such talks to take place that he "quit." The Russians obviously would not deal with him. Nor, for that matter, did he appear to intend dealing with them!

Under Chiang's rule, China's hopes soared. Or, it might be more accurate to say that the hope of the rest of the world soared for seeing a united China returning to economic health. Those hopes were dashed by the Japanese, first, and then by the Russians.

Individual warlords continued to split China and deal with the enemy the same as with friends—almost entirely on the basis of where they could make the most financial profit.

Chiang, to put it simply, failed to solidify his vast and varied country. One hardly expects his successor, Li Tsung-Jen to do any better. Indeed, there are indications that Li's chief interest is in patching things up with the Russians.

The world now knows very well that the only way the Russians "patch" is to absorb. That will not be a simple job in China but the effort at absorption is bound to lead to years of deepening tragedy for hundreds of millions of Orientals.

Say Restrictions Retard Auto Sales

NOW THAT supply is catching up with demand—if it has not already done so—in the automotive industry, objection to credit controls is being revived, with arguments to the effect that government restrictions prevent many people from buying new cars at present prices.

Chief complaint is that the 18 months permitted for completion of deferred payments places monthly payment requirements at too high a level to be met by a majority of would-be buyers, and that sales are thus lost.

When it is taken into account that monthly installment payments on some cars are above $100 it can be readily seen that only fairly "well-to-do" persons can be considered prospects, although it needs be remembered that cars at present prices are beyond the reach of many people—regardless of payment methods.

While it may be reasonably contended that government restrictions on installment buying have an element of paternalism, the present dangerous stage of inflation needs careful handling if a hoped for "mild recession" is not to develop into such a disastrous depression as was being moved toward just twenty years ago at this very moment.

Shortage of Qualified Teachers

THE AMERICAN boast once was that every child could get an education. That may still be true, but not every child can get a good education. A nation-wide survey made by the New York Times indicates that 2,000,000 children this year have poor teachers or inadequate school facilities. There are 105,860 teachers now working who cannot meet the license requirements set up by their respective states.

Bad as this is, the situation was worse a year ago. Then the number of teachers not qualified for license was 122,267. During this same period their salaries, often blamed by educators for scarcity of fit teachers, have gone up. The average instructor now gets $2,644, as against $2,476 last year and $2,026 the year before. This higher level of salaries should have some effect in drawing capable people into the teaching profession.

Local school problems can sometimes be solved, but when the national situation is surveyed, the conclusion is inevitable that more facilities and more skilled teachers are needed. To make the American boast about education accurate today is going to cost taxpayers more money. But proper education will be worth it.

Census figures now place United States population at 148,000,000—which seems to present a fine chance to pass the 150,000,000 mark by next year's decennial census.

Noting how those Hollywood divorces sometimes turn out, Harry Wade suggests: "Maybe the four-year-old tot should be given custody of the mother."

Raymond Moley's Analysis

Truman Plans Follow European Models

IF President Truman were a dictator, able to enforce his recommendations, we should have what the Russians call a "gosplan"—an idea widely copied in Europe even in Socialist Britain.

The State of the Union message, the budget and the report of the economic advisers all fall into a pattern.

Our plan, however, pays some polite respects to private enterprise, which must foot the bills for any plan.

And we have a Congress which will view with much doubt any effort to remodel our affairs on European plans.

A basic assumption in the Truman economic philosophy is that the business cycle is "man made." This was a Marxian invention. But it also appeared in Roosevelt's speech of acceptance in 1932.

It means that by interposing the hand of government in economic life we can avoid depressons, recessions and booms. Despite much government interference in Roosevelt years, however, we had a recession and in the past three years we have had a boom. But the idea still persists that if we give government enough power we shall avoid such excesses.

A basic characteristic of economic planning is the fixing of "goals." Truman specifies these goals and warns private business that if they are not attained government will step in and make them good.

* * *

Easy To Set Goals.

THE GOALS set by the President, with some trimmings independently presented by Leon Keyserling, a member of his Council of Economic Advisers, are these:

The facts of our employment for 1948 add up to about 61,000,000, including more than 2,000,000 in military service. The "goal" for 1949 is about 62,500,000, including an increase of 1,000,000 in civilian employment.

The fact of gross national product for 1948 is about $250,000,000,000. T[illegible] "goal" is about $260.0[illegible]000,000. The fact of 1948 national income is over $220,000,000,000. The 1949 "goal" is over $228,000,000,000.

The fact of private investment in 1948 is nearly $50,000,000,000. Public works for 1948 were $3,000,000,000. The "goal" for 1949 is the same total, but since private investment will probably be less, this means enough more for public works to fill the gap.

The fact of federal receipts in 1948, including social security, was around $43,000,000,000. The "goal" for 1949 is about $48,000,000,000 and probably more.

These "goals" look fine. If by putting some figures on paper and by inducing Congress to pass a few laws we can thus increase our national product and income, how can anyone complain if we take an additional $5,000,000,000 or so for government?

The difficulty is to make it reasonably certain that the 1948 level of business can be maintained by any "man made" effort.

It is difficult to believe that consumer expenditure will rise as is essential to these goals. It is almost absolutely sure that profits and investments in private business will be lower in 1949. A good judge of business trends, Mr. Stagg Lawrence, says that gross private investment, including producers durable goods and construction, will fall between 10 and 20 per cent below the $49,000,000,000 of 1948.

The real issue is whether in the face of that private decline, public works, even if authorized, can get under way with sufficient speed to fill the gap. All past experience tells us that it cannot be done.

Don't Expect Miracles

By THOMAS L. STOKES

WASHINGTON — In the boisterous, carefree midway atmosphere in Washington for President Truman's inaugural celebration there was symbolized the people's victory which the election truly represented.

We Americans are great people for comparisons, both of men and events, a biggest-and-best-ever folks.

Consequently, local historians have dug back into the books to the story of the first inaugural of Andrew Jackson when, for the first time, the people really moved into Washington, rowdy and unashamed, and took over, streaming hilariously into the White House east room and leaving it in a state of untidiness like a picnic grounds with bits of cheese ground into the polished floor.

Even before the inauguration, in fact right after the election, you heard Harry Truman compared to Andy Jackson.

That derived more perhaps from the support he had stirred up among the people by his rough - and - ready campaign against such great odds and against such powerful interests than from personal qualities.

The comparison was heightened by the merry spirit abroad during the inaugural celebration.

Then there are those who bring up Abraham Lincoln, though hesitantly, to be sure—this perhaps because of a humility common to the two men otherwise so different.

There may be some inspiration for this in the civil-rights program which the President champions to accomplish the ultimate freeing of the slaves. That, indeed, is certain to go down in history as a shining mark in the Truman regime.

But such comparisons are a mistake and a disservice to the present occupant of the White House and also to the people, however, beguiling for purposes of idle speculative conversation.

Harry Truman would be the first to scoff at them with that honest grin, being the modest and humble fellow he is, and a person, too, whom you feel knows more about himself than most of us know about ourselves, and surely more than do the usual political figures who rise to such eminence. He is truly modest, and in a way that approaches greatness of a kind, as human beings go.

* * *

"Dynamic Leader" Lacking.

To build him up too high, to make him into something that he isn't and can't be is a mistake for the people themselves. For the victory was theirs, too, and it can be lost by forgetting this and depending too much for achievement of their aims, for realization of their victory, upon one man.

Harry Truman, in short, can't be loaded down with all our hopes and sent off, alone, among those in Congress and in our nation who are waiting to entrap him and to sabotage his program.

The build-up was natural. It came about because a man of his type, a man really of the people, went out almost literally alone, virtually an outcast of his own party, and won a victory that all but a few believed impossible.

He was each of us fighting against heavy odds and winning, like a dream all of us have—only to wake up. His wasn't a dream. The surprise of everybody translated what had happened into a miracle. So he became a "miracle man."

He is, of course, nothing of the sort.

Recognition of this is important for what is ahead. Before us is another prospective revolution, one of our peaceful revolutions, or rather the continuation of a revolution already started that was called the New Deal.

Such revolutions in our past have been carried through by leaders dynamic either in personality or intellect, sometimes both. There have been few such leaders. There are few in any nation's history. People come to look to such leaders for decision and direction—often, in fact, to such an extent that the people do too little for themselves in a political way.

What happens from now on will be a test of democracy. For it is the first time we have set out to make great changes—and such have been proposed—without the dynamic leader.

It puts a responsibility upon the people. It rests with them to translate the paper election victory into a real victory, and that calls for constant watchfulness, constant checking on what goes on here in Washington, particularly in Congress.

Dave Boone Says:

RUSSIA'S top editorialist, Ilya Ehrenburg, says Bernard Baruch loves war, fears peace and walks in step with Hitlerite generals and Ilse Koch. That just gives you an idea of what happens to you if you open your mouth in even a slight criticism of Russia.

* * *

All Mr Baruch did to bring this down on him was to answer some student letters, saying that the whole world wanted peace and that Russia sought it too, but wanted it on her own terms and was like the soldier who said "they're all out of step but me."

* * *

So now the white-haired, gentle philosopher becomes a fellow who loves war, hates peace and is a bad egg all around. I guess Barney is as surprised as the rest of us.

* * *

He was reported on his usual park bench today, and eyewitnesses say he had no war horse beside him and no cannon near by. Can Ehrenburg be wrong?

As Cerf Tells It

Who "originates" anecdotes, and who has the right to stop anyone from re-telling them?

Nicholas Murray Butler summed up the situation this way: "In the case of the first person to use an anecdote, it is originality; in the second, plagiarism; in the third, rehashing a stale story. Finally, after a short interval, a fourth uses the anecdote. In his case, he is credited with research!"

Daily Bible Thought

Hear me speedily, O Lord: my spirit faileth: hide not Thy face from me, lest I be like unto them that go down into the pit.—Ps. 143:7.

Summary of Week's Happenings

Inaugural Festivities Reflect Opulence

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

NO LONGER is Harry S. Truman an "accidental president." He is President by his own right. And Washington spent a week celebrating his inauguration.

The program was filled with receptions, parties, dinners and balls, topped by the solemnity of the oath-taking. There was a new high silk topper, striped pants and a black morning coat for the President. The First Lady had new ball gown of black panne velvet. Daughter Margaret had a lovely gown in "Margaret Pink"—a delicate new shade between that of shell pink and pink champagne.

Overcrowded City.

Washington hotels had long been sold out for the week's events. A committee worked frantically trying to find rooms for visitors in private homes.

Others stayed in near-by cities, commuting back and forth. Millions more outside of Washington also saw the show. It was the first to be televised.

When Mr. Truman took office in 1945 on the death of President Roosevelt, he asked prayers for Divine guidance. This week he asked again.

"With God's help we shall move forward together," he wrote in a brief statement. "The inauguration of the President and the vice-president of the United States is a day of solemn dedication of the American people to those goals we unite in seeking—a just and lasting peace throughout the world and a stable and productive economy at home and abroad."

Congress got into the friendly spirit of Inaugural Week by voting to raise the President's pay from $75,000 to $100,000 a year and his tax-free expense allowance from $40,000 to $90,000.

At Home

Greater Security.

"Social Security" loomed this week as the greatest issue on which Congress may battle the newly-inaugurated President of the United States.

The Truman program calls for vastly expanded old age and unemployment benefits and new health and disability insurance. Already it has provoked bitter debate. Sides are lining up.

The outlook now is for congressional OK of some social security expansion. But despite Democratic majorities in the House and Senate it is doubtful that the President will get everything he wants.

Health insurance appears sure to be the center of a knock-down battle, with some Democrats joining the opposition.

* * *

Unforgotten Man.

This week of President Truman's inauguration was one in which Defeated Candidate Thomas E. Dewey might have preferred obscurity.

Instead, last October's "Cinch-to-be-President" was planning aggressive leadership of the Republican party. Politicians saw no outward signs that he planned to quit public life.

* * *

Patient Is Recovering.

How was Europe making out under the Marshall Plan?

"Progress is encouraging," said officials of the Economic Cooperation Administration this week as they prepared to brief Congress on their second-year needs of $4,500,000,000. But western Europe "still has many difficulties to overcome," including a foreign trade slowdown.

* * *

Communists on Trial.

Eleven of the nation's top communists went on trial in New York this week, charged with working to overthrow the U. S. government by force. But as the trial got under way the communists and their lawyers protested so loudly at court arrangements it was difficult to tell who was the accused and who the accusers.

The trial is the first of its kind in American history. The defendants are specifically charged with conspiracy to organize a party advocating overthrow of the government by force and violence. They face a possible maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine.

Abroad

Bevin on Spot.

Ernest Bevin's position was shakier than it had even been in his three and a half years as Britain's foreign secretary.

For weeks attacks against him had been growing. From within his own party came moves to oust him. At least three members of the Labor Cabinet were said to have turned against his policy. The British press hit him harder and harder on his handling of the entire Palestine crisis.

He was accused of risking war by sending troops into the key port of Aqaba on the Red Sea, dangerously close to Israel's armies. Critics said he had flouted the United Nations, endangered Britain's friendship with the United States, given Russia a wedge to step into the eastern Mediterranean, and had lost the friendship of the potential ally Israel.

* * *

Hope In Holy Land.

A more hopeful air of peace pervaded the Holy Land. Israeli and Egyptian negotiators on Rhodes were making progress. They agreed to respect each other's national security during the talks. Then the Jews made a major concession by agreeing to "immediate" release by an Egyptian brigade of about 3,000 men trapped since mid-October.

Progress also was made at Tel Aviv on Israel's armistice talks with Trans-Jordan.

* * *

Soviet Tone Changes.

From Italy, from France, from Washington came delicate suggestions by communist spokesmen that peace between Russia and the United States was possible.

Up to a few weeks ago the Soviets insisted, regularly, that American top officials were "imperialist" and "war mongers." Now that tone has changed.

Palmira Tagliatti and Marcel Cachin, Red leaders in Italy and France respectively, have recently professed they see no lasting barriers to complete collaboration between the east and west. This week the Soviet Embassy's Information Bulletin, published in Washington, carried an article calling for achievement of a "stable and lasting peace" between "all peoples."

Quotes

J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national committee chairman: "The road to communism is lined with the wreckage of governments which neglected the welfare of their people."

John L. Sullivan, Secretary of the Navy: "With 70 per cent of the earth covered by water and with the advantages of concealment and difficult detection afforded by that water . . . a future conflict might involve as many battles under the sea as on the surface."

Washington circles could not explain why the coo of the dove had replaced the clank of the armor. One observer, however, made this comment:

"Actions still speak louder than words."

In Short

Cancelled: By the U.S. Army, all permits for GI's in Germany to marry German frauleins.

Washington Calling

Who'll It Be In 1952?

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—Mingling with the visitors from out in the country, who were here for the inauguration, you get a yeasty sense of participation. This is their triumph, and, what is more, they are looking ahead to four years from now with the belief that almost certainly somewhere in the crowd was the man who will succeer President Truman as standard-bearer of the party and, if they have anythingto say about it, as President.

There are, first of all, the new senators and representatives whom Washington is just beginning to know. Among them are outstanding men certain to be heard from in the next four years.

But here, too, are the new governors who came in with the unexpected uprising of last November. Gov. Adlai Stevenson, of Illinois, has an exceptional opportunity to make a national reputation, and attention is already focussed on him.

At 49, with a background of wide experience in public life both at home and abroad and with a distinguished family name, he has a chance to clean up the fearful mess left behind in Springfield by the corrupt Republican machine. The task will be far from easy, since the corruption went so deep. But this means that success would be that much more conspicuous.

Another governor who will be watched with special interest is G. Mennen Williams of Michigan. At 37, with no prior experience in office-holding or even campaigning, he defeated the veteran politician, Kim Sigler.

The story has been widely told of how he put a mortgage on his home when his rich Republican family declined to have anything to do with what seemed a fruitless effort.

Williams had the active backing of virtually all trade-union organizations in Michigan with its highly concentrated industry. They may, of course, demand so much from their new governor that he will be put under serious embarrassment.

* * *

Can Gains Be Held?

STILL another governor is Chester Bowles, of Connecticut. Against the advice of most of his sensible friends, he ran for the governorship in a state that seemed overwhelmingly Republican. Like Stevenson, he will have a tough row to hoe since his legislature is Republican.

The new-found vigor of the party is evidenced not only by individuals. Negro leaders from various parts of the country are here, many of them attending an inauguration for the first time and participating in the events connected with it.

This is understandable, since if any single bloc of votes contributed to the Democratic victory, it was the Negro bloc.

But here is a question for the Republican managers. Is the Negro vote to be permanently attached to the Democratic party? The Democratic jubilation may, of course, be premature. There is a possibility that the victory of Nov. 2 will be dissipated in ancient quarrels.

In a first test, which incidentally had a look of petty spite in it, enough old guard Democrats joined the Republicans to stop the attempt to exempt from the amusement tax tickets sold to inaugural functions.

But no matter what the future may hold, the present outpouring is a formidable one. It implies growth and development in the direction indicated by the electorate last fall. In the light of this demonstration, waiting for the Democrats to trip and fall hardly seems adequate.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BETTER CHANGE SLOWLY

WE OUGHT not to let farming become a "guinea pig" for cranks with "big names", for corporations with "big money", or even for scientific societies with batteries of college degrees.

What we call progress may sometimes be around in a circle—a vicious circle. It is doubtless a pretty good thing that farmers, as a class, are conservative and hard to budge from methods handed down through generations.

What seems to be a brand new revolutionary improvement sometimes boomerangs with shocking damage.

At the government's research farm at Beltsville, Maryland, they are stirring land deep down with sound vibrations too high for human ears to hear, yet mighty enough to atomize the earth's elements, sizzle living bacteria and germs that are normal to healthy soil, and profoundly affect certain kinds of crops. They are trying out devastating sprays upon roadsides, thereabouts.

Artificial insemination threatens to do away with bulls over most of the dairy states. So far, milk yield and butter fat have increased. Not enough time has elapsed to reveal what the final effect upon the dairy industry may be.

There are eminent scientists who claim that animals may lose their reproductive powers, since natural calving is the basic reason for milk supply. There are others who advise long-term tests of the quality of the milk so artificially produced, suggesting that it may have an ill effect upon the humans who consume it.

Hybrid seed planted upon increased acreage during wartime has solved the food problem for the emergency. Now some question whether hybridization can be successfully applied to production of food regularly, without depleting the soil too much and so injuring the folks who consume the food.

It is an interesting time to be living on a farm. Farmers in this country are still pretty much their "own boss", but the standards of agricultural management are going steadily up. It is time for the land owners to realize their responsibility for the use of the country's greatest natural resource, its topsoil.

Wise land use can bless not only farmers now, but all the generations waiting to be born.

When Machine Starts to Think It's Time to Call Abrupt Halt

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Poor Man's Philosopher says: Science need someone to holler "Whoa!"

Right now. Before something climbs out of a laboratory and overwhelms the human race.

What's going on here? What's buzzin, cousin? Where are these test tube savants and nabobs of unclear energy taking us? What have the blip jockeys got coming up next on Science's radar? Who's in such a hurry to go where?

The warplane? It's a toy of the past—or soon will be. The atom bomb that was supposed to have the power to destroy civilization is getting to be old stuff, too. The military is reported to be planning a man-made platform in the ionosphere—a circling satellite to serve as a kind of pitcher's box from which to throw the weapons of the future.

Space ships and rockets to the moon—they are in the offing. Only optimists will buy a round trip ticket.

As if these Jules Verne nightmares weren't enough, a Brish scientist has come up with a horror to end all horrors— a mechanical brain.

And that's why somebody better yell "whoa!" right now to the boys who burn the midnight bunsens.

This scientist, Dr. W. R. Ashby, helped build a machine which he says is beginning to think. Well, there you are—the machine at last is on a mental par with man. For man, after all his stormy centuries, is only beginning to think, too.

It's been a fraud all along—this idea that man was master and the machine the slave. People used to have a fear that the machine would throw them out of work. That was nonsense. The machine intended all along to put more and more people to work—and to make them keep working, too. And it has.

When the original traitor to mankind discovered the first machine—the wheel—how many men had to labor for a living? And how many have to work now? Millions upon millions more.

The machine led man into slavery slowly. The saying arose, "All you have to do to get ahead is to put your shoulder to the wheel." Ha, ha, ha! Does that satisfy the machine today?

No, it demands your whole anatomy. To drive a car to work you have to climb completely inside the machine. You have to use your head, your hands, your feet, your eyes, your nerves, your muscles—and often your vocal chords.

And when you get to work is the machine willing to let you put merely your shoulder to the wheel? No! It demands now that you keep your nose to the grindstone—the last indignity.

All right, go ahead and laugh at a poor philosopher. People laughed at the Wright brothers—when perhaps they should have wept.

But don't blame me if your great-great-grandson meekly has to carry a breakfast tray in every morning to a steel-ribbed robot lying abed with a creaky hangover—a breakfast tray carrying, perhaps, a shot of bourbon with a fuel oil chaser.

The best thing science can do with all thinking machines is to throw sand in them—strip 'em from gear to gear. Now!

Tactics Vary But Communists' Sole Aim Is World Domination

THE ULTIMATE OBJECTIVE of communists is world communism. Their tactics frequently vary: They zigzag, flip-flop, leap-frog and go in circles—but the aim remains constant. . . . To achieve their goal communists will temporarily support international co-operation, or even pose as human beings. This type of political and diplomatic expediency is merely used to gain their final objective. The fact must never be disregarded.

Communists wage a relentless war in various forms: Propaganda, treachery, deceit, espionage and infiltration are all weapons. The battlefield may be a political or social club, a government agency, a labor union—or your mind.

A nation's economic sinews provide the power for its military fist. That is why communists hover over democracies like vultures—ready to swoop down as soon as a depression strikes. That is why they're always instigating labor - management unrest... Americans who beat a drum in the gimme parade play into the dirty paws of communists. By weakening our economy we give strength to communism.

Oddly enough, the mightiest allies of communists are industrialists who allow inflation to zoom—or Wall streeters who put the skids under the market. Such financial finagling only profits those whose business consists of destroying democracy.

When you spot a weasel in the works of any international machinery—it's a cinch to be a communist. They enter such organizations—not to solidify global co-operation—but to be in a strtegic position to whiz monkey-wrenches. Andrei's Vishinskying in the UN offers a vivid illustration of that method.

Such nefarious maneuvers aren't new: When the Soviet Union accepted membership in a commission created by the League of Nations to study the problem of a European union, Pravda bluntly confessed in 1931: "By taking part in the work of the European commission the Soviet Union will wreck the plans of the commission."

Like all criminals, communists make frequent use of aliases. Not agents switch names but comonly do individual communist munist agencies are often disguised.

In Canada the communist party is called "Labor Progressive." In Colombia it's tagged "Democratic Socialist." In Panama it's "The Party of the Public." In Bulgaria, "Worker's Party" and in Germany, "Socialist Unity."

Before joining any organization, you must double check.

Communists pose as foes of Fascists. Actually, they're rival mobsters intent on committing the same crimes—robbing liberty and murdering decency...It should be remembered that Russia fought nazism because it was wantonly attacked. The Soviet Union had no other choice. When Russia did have a choice it took the side of nazism by inking a friendship pact.

It's important to realize that communists rejected morality a long time ago. Lenin said: "When people talk to us about morality we say: For the communist, morality consists entirely of compact, united discipline to attain our ends. We do not believe in eternal morality"...With that depraved viewpoint as a guide—it's simple to savvy why communists are ready to condone the most despicable crimes to achieve power.

4 Injured In Accidents Near City

Driver In One Crash Draws $20 Fine

Four persons were injured, none critically, in two traffic accidents today near the city.

George Mines, 50, of Cleveland, and his wife, Viola, 50, were injured at 9:20 a. m. today when their car was sideswiped by a car driven by William Birmelin, of Ashland on U. S. Route 42, three miles north of Mansfield, state patrolmen said.

Mines suffered a fractured left leg and lacerations of the head. His wife suffered head injuries and lacerations. Both were admitted to Mansfield General hospital. Birmelin was uninjured.

The state patrol reported that the exact cause of the accident has not yet been determined. Officers have not decided whether charges will be filed against Birmelin, who was headed toward Mansfield.

A driver and his passenger suffered minor injuries at 1:05 a. m. today when their car smashed into the rear of a parked car on Bowman street, just south of Longview avenue.

The injured were James Petty, 23, of 21 Louis avenue, the driver, and George Swarn, 21, of 163 Crystal Springs street. Both received multiple contusions and were treated and released at General hospital.

After he left the hospital, Petty was cited to municipal court on charges of unsafe operation and operating a motor vehicle on a temporary permit, unaccompanied by a licensed driver.

He was found guilty of both charges and was fined $15 and costs and lost his right to drive for 30 days on the first count and paid $5 and costs on the second.

Petty claimed that as he was traveling north, a car coming in the opposite direction forced him over to the right, causing him to hit the parked car of Philip Mayer, 620 McPherson street.

The inspection was conducted by Cmdr. Richard Hoyer, inspector-instructor of the Naval Reserve unit in Toledo. Assisting Hoyer in the inspection were Lt. Cmdr. W. D. Flower, Naval Reservist of Akron and Lts. Gallaher, Kent, and Radford, Regular Navy officers attached to the Reserve unit in Cleveland.

Attending the inspection were eight officers and 123 men of the Mansfield unit.

Girl Released From Jail

A 17-year-old girl held in the county jail as a delinquent since Wednesday was reelased to her parents this morning after an informal hearing in juvenile court.

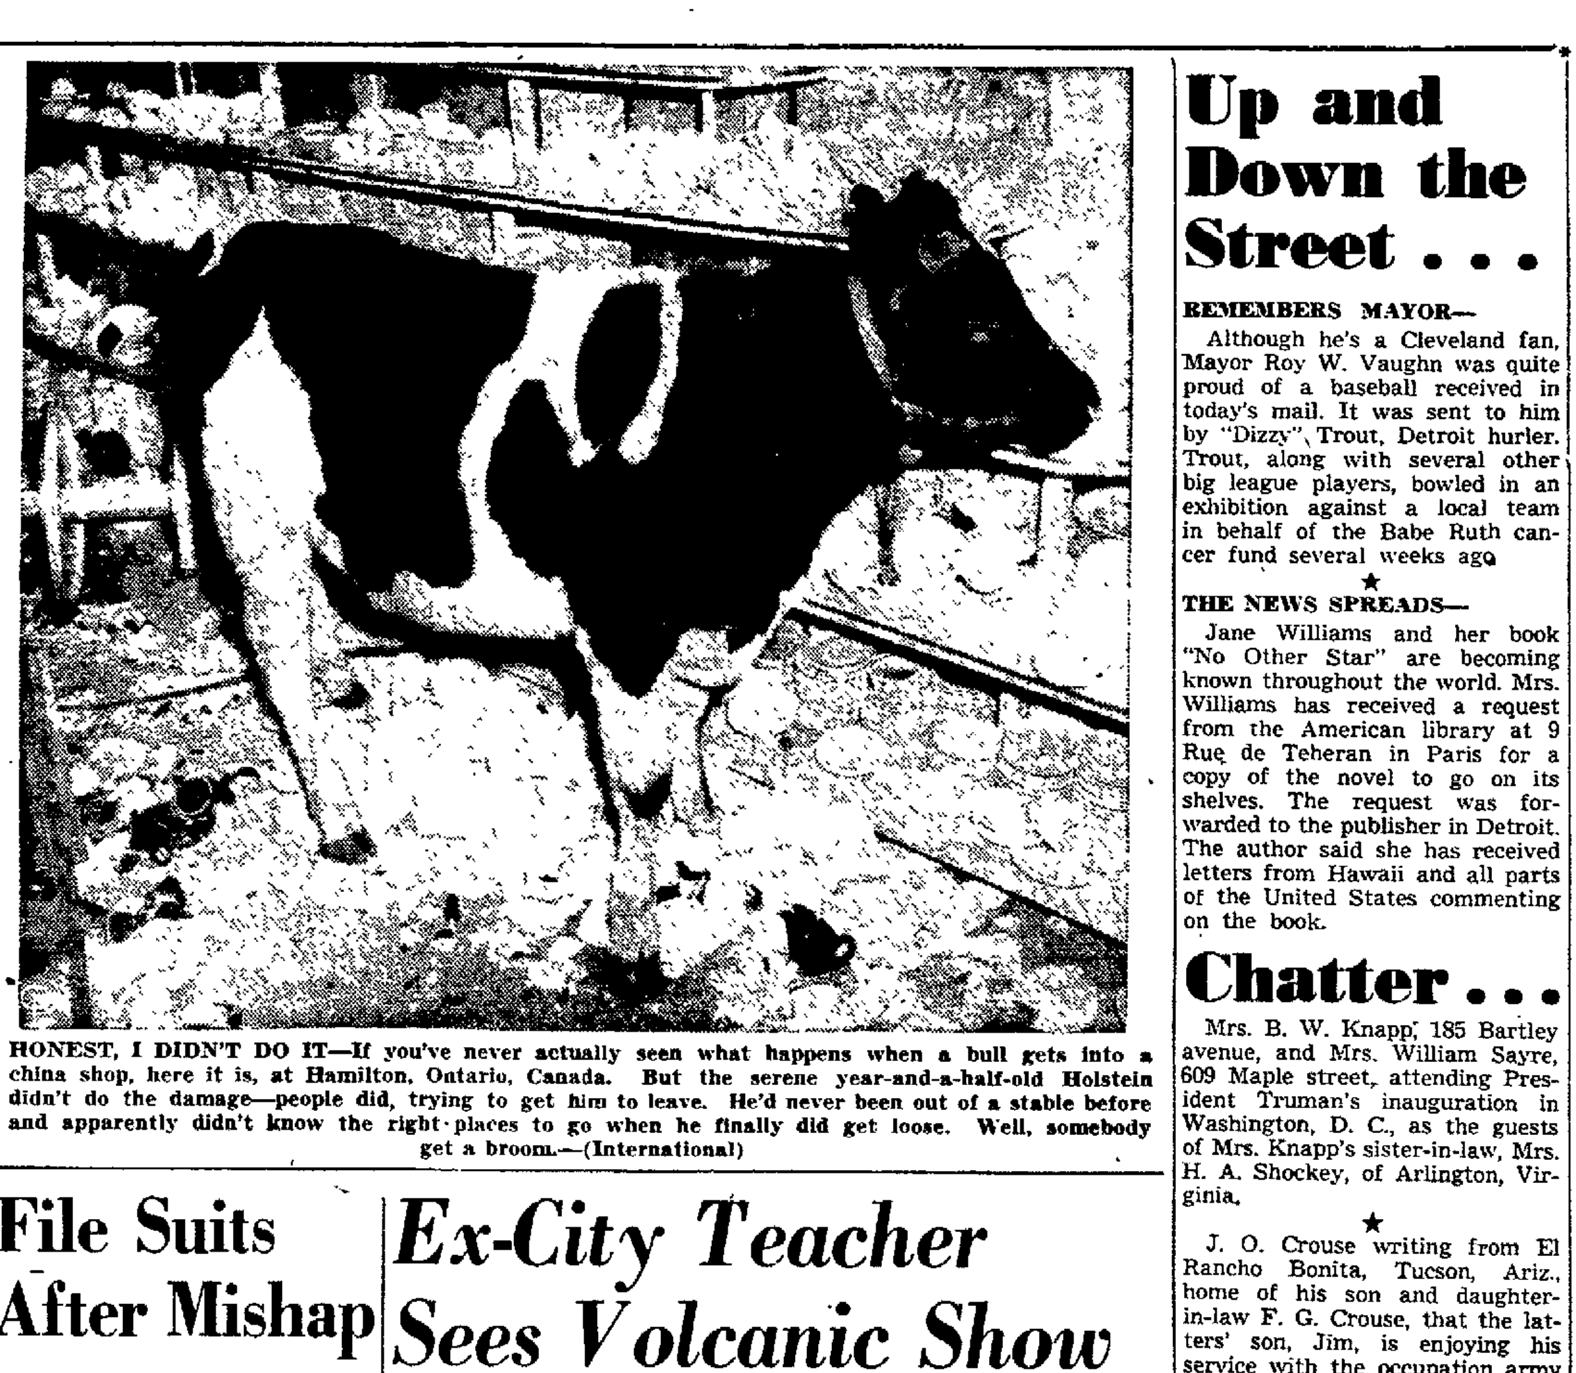
Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Cramer said court officials would attempt to work out the girl's problem in her home. He said the court was still awaiting a medical report from the health department regarding the girl.

The girl was held in the county jail because Richland county since Jan. 1 has been without a detention home. She had refused to carry out the terms of a juvenile court order imposed when she was in court on truancy charges, and because of her general behavior, court attaches said.

Mancrest Inn Blaze Confined to Cabin

A tourist cabin operated in conjunction with the Mancrest Inn, U. S. Route 30-N, was destroyed by fire Thursday noon. The Inn itself was not damaged, the owner reported today.

Damage to the cabin was estimated at $2,000 and $600 to the contents. An oil stove explosion caused the fire.



HONEST, I DIDN'T DO IT—If you've never actually seen what happens when a bull gets into a china shop, here it is, at Hamilton, Ontario, Canada. But the serene year-and-a-half-old Holstein didn't do the damage—people did, trying to get him to leave. He'd never been out of a stable before and apparently didn't know the right places to go when he finally did get loose. Well, somebody get a broom.—(International)

Three suits seeking a total judgment of $16,000 from Joseph A. Marfia, 525 North Townview circle, as the result of an automobile collision last Oct. 28, were filed today in Common Pleas court.

One of the suits is for $10,000 and was filed on behalf of Eva Erickson, 17, by her father, Lloyd Erickson, 141 Washington avenue. The suit alleges the girl suffered injuries when a car in which she was a passenger was struck by Marfia's car on U. S. Route 42, five miles north of Mansfield.

The suit says the car had been parked on the berm of the road, when the driver, Ralph L. Boylan jr., Mansfield, R. D. 5, stopped to assist another driver involved in an accident. The action charges Marfia was careless and negligent.

Ex-City Teacher Sees Volcanic Show

A first-hand account of the recent eruption of Mauna Loa volcano on the Island of Hawaii was received here yesterday by Miss Ruth Maffett, Johnny Appleseed teacher, from Mrs. Carl Eshlman, the former Betty Smith, who was a Madison high teacher.

Mrs. Eshlman gives an eye-witness story of the volcano spectacle and the reaction of her three small children.

"On Thursday Jan. 6, between 5 and 6 p. m.," she relates, "we saw a beautiful red-orange cloud directly in front of our house toward the mountain (Mauna Loa). It could have been the reflection of a sunset except that the setting sun was hidden by clouds that evening. We turned on the radio and our expectations were confirmed; Mauna Loa, the volcanic mountain on which we live, had erupted and was pouring lava directly toward us.

"As darkness fell, the sky was aglow above the mountain and in the sky above us a red-orange mushroom shaped cloud had formed.

"Our two older children were considerably upset, but by 8:30 p. m., we had the three children in bed. Carl and I listened to the radio reports until 2 a. m. Friday when we decided that sleep was needed. At 5 a. m. we were wakened and told that we should be ready to evacuate since the lava had come down 10 miles from the summit in 12 hours.

"We then found that many people from Hookena to Captain Cook monument, an area of 20 miles, had been sitting in cars and trucks with their possessions since midnight.

SCHOOL CLOSED

"Naturally, no children came to school on Friday and Carl received word to remove all school records and files. (Eshlman is principal of a school at Hookena).

"Tom and Anne caught the fear that was growing so we decided to take them to a friend's home for the night. After the school records were removed and the teachers exacuated, we started out.

"The sight was depressing. Every available truck was moving furniture. Along the road were people, bedding, stoves, iceboxes—anything. A few storekeepers moved their entire stores. That night about 200 evacuees were taken care of at Konawaena school —the high school in central Kona.

"On Saturday the lava flow toward us stopped about seven miles directly above us. However, the summit crater is still active and several severe earthquakes this week might mean that activity may start again further down the mountainside. We still see a bright glow in the sky from the summit crater."

The Eshlmans returned to their home Saturday but on Jan. 17, Mrs. Eshlman added a postscript to the letter before sending it.

"The sky still shows a brilliant red glow and this is one time I'm not too enthusiastic about a volcano," she declared.

Mrs. Eshlman is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Smith of Mansfield. Her father was a Mansfield barber for a number of years. She and her husband moved to the Island of Hawaii about 14 years ago. Since then, they seem to have been followed by a trail of disasters, according to Miss Maffett.

They were in the disaster of Pearl Harbor, moved to Hilo on the Island of Hawaii following the tidal wave which hit the islands a couple of years ago and now may be forced to flee from the volcano area.

In closing her letter to Miss Maffett, Mrs. Eshlman said, "To complete that week end, we had a severe wind and rain storm; a plane was lost somewhere near the crater and a live Japanese mine was picked up off the coast."

Leland Electric Employes Act

(By United Press)

DAYTON —"Known" fascists, nazis and communists today were barred from membership or holding office in Local 804, United Electrical Workers (CIO).

The local, composed of employes of Leland Electric company, barred subversive elements from its ranks in a resolution amending its constitution. The action was seen as a direct slap at the union's International officers who have refused to sign non-communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law.

The Dayton local's move followed similar action by a Mansfield local of the UEW last fall.

The resolution, adopted at a meeting attended by 440 of the local's 427 members, provided that the local will not work with or be associated with any known fascists, nazi or communist.

BARRED FROM MEETING

It also put the local on record as favoring prohibition of interference by UE international representatives and barred international representatives from local meetings unless invited by the membership.

The resolution was in direct violation of a recent bulletin issued by the international which declared that the international's constitution does not permit constitution's of any local to be contrary to the policy of guaranteeing "every member" all rights and privileges of membership, "including the right to hold any position in the union."

In a bulletin issued to the Leland company union last January, the international said:

"Communists have the right to belong to our union. We judge a man by his actions, by his deeds, not by his thoughts. Communists . . . are among the founders and builders of this union."

Local 711 of the UEW (Westinghouse) adopted a ruling last November barring communists from holding union offices.—The Mansfield action was the first such taken in the entire nation.

Mrs. Addie O. Smith, 84, died this morning at her home 147 South Adams street, following an illness of several months.

Mrs. Smith was born in Mansfield March 9, 1864 and had spent her entire life in this community. She was a member of the St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving are a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Violet Smith and several nieces and nephews.

Throng Sees New Autos

A total of 1,500 cigaret lighters were given out by the Brandenburg Chevrolet company in about 10 minutes this morning when more than 2,000 persons lined up to view the new 1949 Chevrolet cars.

Although it had been advertised that the display room would open at 9 a. m., by 7:30 a. m., when officials arrived, the line extended so far up the street that the doors were opened at 8:15 a. m., to relieve the congestion, officials said.

Three new Crevrolet cars were displayed—a convertible, two-door sedan, and a four-door sedan.

YWCA Sets Up Program For Mothers, Children

The Mansfield YWCA is going to make it possible for Mom to have a day out every week for eight weeks, beginning Feb. 9.

A "Ladies' Day Out" program, coupled with a nursery for children from two to six years old, was announced today.

Beginning Tuesday, Feb. 8, arrangements have been made for Mansfield mothers to come to the YWCA, bring their youngsters along if he or she is between the ages of two and six years, and put him in the nursery while she takes part in whatever activity she prefers.

Luncheon will be served at noon to the group of mothers, at the same time the kiddies are served a well-balanced meal in their nursery.

"It is not necessary for the women to be members of the YWCA to take part in the 'Ladies Day Out' program," Miss Dorothy Hainer, business - industrial program of the association, said.

"The only requirements are payment of a fee of $4 for adult women, $6 for women with one child in the nursery, and $1 for each additional child for the entire eight-week period." Miss Hainer said. Cost of the lunches is 50 cents per day for the mothers and 25 cents for the youngster.

The nursery will be open each Tuesday from 9:45 a. m. to 3:30 p. m., and the tentative plans call for the mothers' schedule to start at 10 a. m., with knitting and sewing at the YWCA. Mothers will go to the YMCA for gym classes and swimming. Mrs. Mildred Osmond, a Red Cross swimming instructor, will be in charge of the swimming classes. Luncheon will be served at the YWCA at noon, and from 1 until 2 o'clock variety programs have been planned, to include speakers, book reviews, singing, and skits.

From 2 p. m. for the remainder of the afternoon the group may play cards, with an instructor to teach them if desired. If the women wish to learn hat-remodeling, crafts or a course on "charm," such classes will be arranged, it was said.

While plans are underway for setting up the nursery on the second floor of the YWCA, Miss Hainer said there is a need for contributions of small chairs, blocks, portable swings and other toys with which to entertain the youngsters.

A standard YWCA medical examination will be required of the mothers participating in the gym and swimming classes, and cards to be filled out by their doctor are available at the YWCA office.

GOP, Dem Party Leaders Demand Repeal of Peacetime Draft

U. S. Forces Now Listed As Complete

Total Budget Allowance Reached

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Both Democratic and Republican congressmen called today for repeal of the peacetime draft.

The demand that the draft law be wiped off the books came as a result of Defense Secretary Forrestal's announcement that the armed forces now number 1,621,000 men — the total strength allowed under the budget.

Two members of the House Armed Services committee were among those advocating abolition of the draft. They were Reps. Havenner (D) Calif., and Bishop (R) Ill., both of whom voted against the draft bill last session.

Key Democrat and GOP spokesmen however declared against any such move although Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., chairman of the House group, reiterated that universal military training will not be considered by his committee this session.

Havenner declared that he voted against the bill because he felt it was not necessary to conscript 18-year-olds and asserted that Forrestal's announcement "vindicates those of us who opposed it."

Bishop announced he would definitely support a repeal move. He said:

"This proves if they had lowered the qualifications they could easily have gotten enough voluntary enlistments. In my opinion, the passage of the draft was one of the things that cost the Republicans the election."

A majority member of the House foreign affairs committee, Rep. Mansfield (D) Mont., who also opposed passage last year, said:

"I'm more convinced than ever that the bill should be repealed. The draft is being shown up every day as more and more unnecessary."

Another opponent, Rep. Lemke (R) N. D., announced he would support repeal legislation. He said:

"The law should never have been passed. The committee should consider the military needs from the point of view of the people rather than the militarists."

Vinson was joined by a substantial number of Republicans however in his declaration that the draft act should be continued. Vinson commented:

"There's no question of repealing the law. It's a two-year act and the question of its continuance will not come up until next year. In my opinion, the distinct threat of a drop in voluntary recruitment would result if the law were not in effect."

Seek 'Last Date' In N. J. Shooting

UNION CITY, N. J. — (INS) — Union City police today hunted the "last date" of pretty blonde Mrs. Mildred Spiegel Carl, found shot to death in her bed last night, clad only in panties and a brassiere.

The 26-year-old divorcee's body was discovered in her apartment after an unidentified man telephoned police reported the slaying, and then quickly hung up.

ARREST 60 'SPIES'

PRAGUE, — (INS) — The Czechoslovak government announced today that 60 persons allegedly involved in an espionage ring working for "American interests" have been arrested in Bratislava. The persons arrested were described as "enemy servants of American intelligence."

Appleseed Ninth Graders To Present 'Crook Catchers'

By JANET NEAL AND JANISE SMITH

The ninth grade dramatics class at Johnny Appleseed has chosen "Crook Catchers" as the class play for this year. Members of the cast include Shirley Mott, Shirley Tucker, Norma Falls, Pat Sites, Joyce Cramer, Mildred Kirkpatrick, Pat Domer, Serles Mitchell, Jack Allen and Dick Schladen.

Plans are being carried out for the annual GAA banquet to be held Feb. 11. Many awards will be presented at the banquet, but the one of greatest importance will be an award to a ninth grade girl for the most outstanding athletic ability during her three years at Appleseed.

Participation on all-star teams, good sportsmanship, athletic ability, cooperation, and being captain on different teams will be the requirements.

Girls' intramural basketball games started off this week with a bang, with a strong team from room 114 defeating room 204 by the score of 16-2. Ninth grade leaders will referee all of the games in the tournament which will continue through April. The leaders are Charlotte Guiher, Nancy Ward, Nancilee Clark, Sandra Theaker, Mary Lou McCullough, Janise Smith, Priscilla Slabaugh, Mary Benson, Dorothy Elsasser, Janet Neal, Lanny Carr, Pat Daugherty, Pat Doner, Marilyn Calmes, Lydia Knoblauch, Edythe Browarsky, Edna Gerber, Nelaura Orr, Sally Ritzenthaler, Susan Benzing, Rosemary Jones, Joyce Cramer, and Diana Hale.

The ninth grade art classes under the direction of Miss Virginia Stark are etching and painting glasses while those taught by Miss Helen Herring are busy drawing futuristic cities. If some of these drawings are done well enough, they will be sent to an art exhibit in Cleveland.

New students who have enrolled during the past week are: Gene Simmons, Richard Schladen, Judith Schladen, Marlene Tarr, Joe O'Hail, Jim Witzky, and Alfred Lozier.

Ohio Makes 'Em

Button Industry Cited

MANCHESTER — (AP) — While searching under your bedroom dresser for a missing button, did you ever pause to wonder where buttons come from?

You can quickly satisfy your curiosity in this little Ohio river town (Pop. [illegible]). In it thrives the only button factory in Ohio and one of the few in the United States.

To Manchester come tons of mussel shells from Ohio river and sea shells from the Pacific islands. From them are made buttons which adorn the shirts and dresses of men and women all over the world.

After the buttons are punched from the shells, the discards are tossed outside. They grow into pearly mounds 30 or more feet high and offer a strange sight when the sun shines on them.

The factory, owned by Harvey Chambers and son of Amsterdam, N.Y., was founded in 1908 and at peak production has employed 125 persons.

Manchester was chosen for the factory because of the raw materials at hand, along with fuel, power, transportation and marketing facilities.

Mussel shells are dredged from the Ohio river, and cost $60 a ton. The shells from Hawaii cost $2,000 a ton.

The salt water shells bring the fancier price because they produce a higher lustre than the domestic variety.

The shells, after buttons are punched out, are sold at 25 cents a ton for driveways and for other uses.

FCC Rapped For Ignoring Lamb Book

Hearings In Mansfield Cited

system." The committee report then cites several quotations from Lamb's book which it says are given "as illustrative of his ideas." Some of the committee's references to the book include:

(P. 9) But irrespective of what Americans may or may not believe about the Soviet Union, the fact remains that it is the only country making rapid economic and cultural progress in a world stricken by crises of overproduction, debts, and lack of leadership.

P. 14) The time has past for lily-of-the-valley amendments. Serious social upheavals and changes must take place.

(P. 175) If a planned economy works and the unregulated anarchy existing in America today doesn't remove some millions of workers from bread lines, are we to continue our policy of burning at the stake and deporting those who suggest a change, even if the idea doesn't happen to originate in America?

The committee's report also cites how Lamb in his Mansfield testimony sought to bring in the name of Louis Bromfield, noted author, as one favoring establishment of his radio station, and reproduced a copy of a letter from Bromfield which refuted Lamb's contention.

The record of court proceedings in Scioto county (Portsmouth) where charges for disbarment of Lamb were instituted on the contention he had been guilty of professional misconduct also were cited in the investigators' report. Lamb was awarded licenses for Mansfield and Springfield, O., but later voluntarily surrendered both.

As another example of "apparent lack of investigation of the personnel into whose hands the commission issued licenses to broadcast," the probers cited licensing of the Cooperative Broadcasting Association which it states now operates station WCFM in Washington, D. C.

Of this FCC operation the investigating committee's report states:

"After the issuance of the construction permit to build radio station WCFM it became apparent that sufficient funds were not available to complete the construction and assure operation. It is not only the duty but the policy of the commission to investigate an applicant's financial ability to defray costs of initial construction and operation before granting construction permits or licenses. Investigation proves that the commission, in most instances, strictly follows this rule, however in the case of this cooperative, the association was permitted to solicit funds from the general public for its completion and operation after the license was granted."

Urging the appointment of a committee of the new Congress to proceed with the investigation of FCC, the committee also recommends that "broader and more precise law" is needed for regulation of the FCC. Stressing its concern at the license-granting procedure as applied to Lamb, the committee's report states:

"The agency (FCC) is a main target for communistic infiltration and ultimate domination. For as Edward Lamb says in his book on Soviet Russia "the friend of Russia is the friend of radio."

'Starving' Lou Nips Jap Ace

TOKYO—(AP)—The story of how an American track star, while badly undernourished as a prisoner of war, was forced to race a Japanese champion—and beat him—was disclosed today.

It was revealed in an affidavit from Lou Zamperini, one time Olympic games miler from Southern California. His affidavit is in the war crimes trial record of Adm. Soemu Toyoda.

Zamperini was an air force bombardier during the war. He was captured after floating 47 days in a life raft off the Marshall Islands.

The miler testified that some time after his capture he was compelled to run the race but won despite his condition.

The former captain did not name the Japanese miler.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Merge Pair For Yankee Field Play

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO — (AP) — The National Football league and All-America conference are still at grips, ready to continue their war through 1949 at an estimated cost as high as $2,000,000.

The AAC, ending its meeting today, will operate next season with seven clubs. The Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees merged. The home field will be Yankee stadium.

At the same time, two NFL clubs will be operating in New York at the Polo Grounds. The Giants will share dates there with the Boston Yanks who were granted a franchise in New York as the NFL ended its winter conclave yesterday.

PLAYOFF IS OUT

The eastern-western championship playoff in the AAC, possible under an even eight club alignment, was abandoned. The seven-club setup made it necessary also to reduce the schedule from 14 to 12 games for each entry with one club being idle every fourth Sunday.

A contest between the 1949 AAC champion and an all-star group selected from the six other teams may replace the east-west title playoff at the end of the season.

George Halas of the Chicago Bears, an NFL ringleader, declared that "the AAC will have little chance to success with seven teams."

The Chicago Rockets — who, along with the Dodgers and Yankees were ready earlier to withdraw in the interest of peace—will continue.

MORE BACKERS

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, chairman of the AAC executive board and owner of the Los Angeles Dons, said the Rockets now have $300,000 on the line to operate in 1949. This will be the fourth different group to back the ill-fated Chicago entry in four seasons.

Lindheimer observed that each league lost from $750,000 to $1,000,000 each season for the last three years. This would total upwards of $5,000,000 to $6,000,000 as the cost for waging player-signing and patronage war—a conservative estimate in many minds. On this basis, the 1949 campaign will cost upwards of $2,000,000.

Admirals Back In Win Column

PERRYSVILLE — Perrysville got back to its winning ways here last night as it downed Hayesville 48-34. The Admirals jumped into a 22-5 halftime lead and were never in danger.

Hero Brown was the leading point maker of the evening with 17 markers while teammate Snuffy Smith scored 11.

The reserve game also went to Perrysville, 24-23.

Minnesota Shoots for Big 9 Win

CHICAGO —(INS)— Undefeated Minnesota shoots tonight for its fifth straight western conference basketball victory.

The Golden Gophers—one of four teams in the nation with a spotless record—battle Indiana in the Minnesota field house at Minneapolis in one of three Big Ten contests.

Coach Ossie Cowles' quintet is a definite favorite to hand the Hoosiers their third loss in five league starts. The Gopher five has raced through its conference tilts with win margins of at least 14 points.

Only Illinois, which is idle tonight, still has a clean slate in the loop. The Illini have won three games.

Heading the Minnesota attack are big Jim McIntyre, who so far has scored 217 points from his pivot position, and Whitey Skoog, a dead-eye forward with 194 markers.

Indiana is fast and capable of upsetting the Gophers but the probability of its doing so is rather remote. The Hoosiers have triumphed in 10 of 13 games this season and are aiming for their 30th win over Minnesota.

Purdue collides head on with Ohio State and high-scoring Dick Schnittker at Columbus, with the Buckeyes expected to win by some six points.

Both teams have a 2-2 won and lost record in the loop standings but one of the OSU losses was inflicted by a mediocre Iowa five which took advantage of Schnittker's illness last week.

The only other conference tilt in an abbreviated schedule pits Iowa against Northwestern at the Chicago stadium in the first half of a doubleheader featuring the NCAA champion Kentucky Wildcats against De Paul.

Northwestern, which currently is languishing in the league cellar with two defeats, should beat the Hawkeyes. The Evanston five has been hampered in early season play by the absence of Center George Maddock and Forward Tom Worthington, who were enjoying the advantages of a Rose Bowl trip. But they are back.

Art Hilborn Continues Honor Roll Kegling Habit

One man hit the honor roll last night and he is a "real 600 bowler."

The party in question is Art Hilborn, Colony alley manager, who tossed a 625 in the Moose league for his third consecutive honor roll series. He had identical scores of 637 in the City A league Wednesday and the Commercial B Thursday.

Art rolled his comparatively slow curve ball for scores of 200, 220 and 205 last night. He had the only 600 series in four Colony and one Richland league.

Behind him in the Moose league were: Bill Trisler, 584; Don Dancer and John Leppo, 565; Ed Burger, 556, and Bud McKee, 554.

★

Embarrassing though it might be to the men, only nine male bowlers bettered the 202-159-191—552 fired by Evelyn Marshman in the Women's Commercial B league. She led the Gay Nineties team to a two-of-three victory over Urschel Insurance to keep it in a first place deadlock with Ingram-Martin. Ingram won two from Home Interiors.

Helen Wilhelm of Urschel's was the only other woman over 500 as she posted 173-185-159—517. Mary McMullen, Ingram-Martin, had 484, Hazel Hilborn of All-States Freight, 483, and Mary Dintaman, Ingram-Martin, 469.

★

Lou Tridico paced the Westinghouse D league with 189-182-210—581 and was followed closely by Joe Bader, 572. Ray Page had 556 and Paul Brown, 549.

★

Gene Yarman's 538 topped the Independent loop but was only two pins better than the 536 carved out by John Holda. Jim Cunningham rolled 513 and Jerry Emminger 507 for the only other scores over the 500 mark.

★

Nick Loris topped Barnes Manufacturing bowlers with 531 while Gene Rudolph had a 518. Watkins turned in 491 and D. McCullough, 462.

NOL Unbeaten Ranks Deleted Friday Night

Reshuffling of the Northern Ohio league basketball standings last night found the Bellevue Redmen slipping ahead of Shelby and Crestline into first place.

Bellevue handed Shelby its first league defeat, 53 to 46 while Bucyrus knocked Crestline out of the undefeated ranks, 50 to 30. Shelby had won three straight and Crestline two. Bellevue now has won four and lost one in the league while Bucyrus is knotted with Shelby with three and one marks.

GOOD THIRD HEAT

A good third quarter enabled Bellevue to pile up its victory lead. The Redmen were in the van at the intermission points, 13 to 11, 27 to 24 and 40 to 31. Bellevue increased its lead to 53-39 with three minutes to play but Shelby closed out with seven straight points.

Stan Cronenwett of Shelby left the game on personals. Shelby won the reserve game as Blosser dumped in 10 points.

The well-balanced Bucyrus club poured on the coal in the second quarter to defeat Crestline. The Bulldogs trailed only 13-11 at the quarter, but fell behind at the half, 33-17. Kibler, Widman and Smith all scored over 12 points for Bucyrus.

Bucyrus also won the preliminary test, 40 to 23.

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — If Joe Louis has his way, only one of two contenders — Ezzard Charles or Lee Savold — will get a crack at his title this June in New York.

In Florida for six non-title bouts, Louis said he would "really retire" after the June fight.

Lucas Gives Ontario 5 Rough Time

LUCAS—Lucas high school made a valiant effort here last night before falling prey to the undefeated Ontario Warriors in a Richland county league basketball game, 50-40.

The Lucas team which has shown marked improvement in recent games kept in the running until midway in the third quarter when Ontario pulled ahead for keeps. Ontario led at the quarter, 12 to 10, but Jack Stephenson and Capt. Bob Harvey contributed two quick buckets to put Lucas in the van.

In the next two minutes, the lead changed hands four times and Ontario's Rich Hunt and Howard Sunnucks made a basket and free throw to knot the score at the half, 22 to 22. The lead again see-sawed in the third period before Ontario swept ahead, 40 to 35.

Sunnucks, the league's top scorer, had 17 points to boost his total to 159. Lucas salvaged the reserve contest, 30 to 24.

Rams Given Fourth Setback of Season

Mansfield Senior high school will go after its 17th straight home court victory tonight against Akron North in the Tyger lair.

The Bengals of Coach Vern Hoffman have won five of the 16 this season and hold a seasonal record of six victories and five defeats. The North quintet has four wins in nine games. Last night, North dropped a Rubber city league game to Akron Buchtel, 60 to 49.

The North reserves are slated to go against Fred Staub's Tyger soph cubs in the preliminary at 7 p. m. The sophs have copped eight of nine contests.

North has only two lettermen—Al Letta and Dick Gowin—and will be quite a bit smaller than the Bengals.

DOWN TO PAIR

Tonight's Senior high monogram winner quota will be actually down to a pair. Ed Demyan is out because of grades while Bernie Weaver just joined the squad this week and Hoffman hasn't committed himself on how much he will use the big senior. Weaver won a cage letter as a soph but did not report at the start of this season.

That leaves Co-captains Paul Ferguson and Norb Shibinski as the veterans. They will team with Jimmy Anderson, Ken McCally and either Ed Schmitt or Willie Fowler in the starting cast. Ferguson, the clever ball-handler, is the only Tyger with the six-foot mark.

Akron North has not played on the Mansfield court since the Tyger cage carnival in 1946.

KENTON—Madison high's second half drive failed to overtake the high-flying Kenton Wildcats here last night as the host team scored a 52-41 victory.

It was the fourth defeat against six victories for the Rams.

Kenton jumped into a 20-12 first quarter lead and built it to 33-19 at the half before Madison started to rally. The Rams outscored Wildcats by three points in the second half but the early lead was too much.

DECKER GIVES LESSONS

Decker, a pony-sized forward, gave the Rams lessons in ball-handling, rebounding and shooting. An all-Ohio back in football, he led both teams in scoring with 20 points.

The first few minutes of the game were a complete reversal of the rest of the game. After Kenton scored the first field goal, the Rams built up a 9-3 lead before Kenton took command.

The Wildcats pulled ahead 15-9 before Madison scored again and were never in serious trouble thereafter.

Ed Chelski, the Rams' leading scorer, maintained his 11-point per game average as he dropped in four field goals and three free throws.

RAM RESERVES WIN

Dave Davies, 5-9 guard, scored on a tip-in in the last three seconds to give the Madison reserves a 27-to-26 victory in the preliminary.

It was the fourth victory in the past five games for the little Rams. Davies got all three of his field goals in the fourth quarter as the Rams came from behind. Jerry Tallentire, freshman forward, paced Madison with 11 points.

Yankees Sign Reynolds, Lopat

(By United Press)

The New York Yankees, clearing the decks for more serious contract discussions with their highest-priced star Joe DiMaggio, today reached salary agreements with Ed Lopat and Allie Reynolds, two of their pitching mainstays.

With DiMaggio still unsigned and reportedly seeking a salary up to $100,000, the signing of Lopat and Reynolds gave the Yankees seven players in the fold for 1949.

Lopat, a southpaw, won 17 games while losing 11 in 1948. Reynolds, a right-hander, was the workhorse of the Yankees staff, pitching 236 innings and winding up with a record of 16 victories against seven defeats.

The Detroit Tigers counted 12 men who have come to terms with the signing of five more players yesterday, including veterans Pat Mullin and Eddie Mayo. The others signed were Outfielder Don Lund, purchased Thursday from the St. Louis Browns and Rookies Johnny Bero and George Lerchen.

Mullin, an outfielder, hit 23 home runs in 1948 and batted .288 in 138 games. Mayo, a second baseman, hit .249 in 106 games.

Second Baseman Pete Suder and relief Pitcher Alex Kellner returned their signed pacts to the Philadelphia Athletics, bringing to 15 the number of contented Mackmen. Suder batted .241 in 148 games for the A's last season. Kellner, a left-hander, pitched in 13 contests, but had no victories or defeats.

The Philadelphia Phillies counted six players under contract for next season with the signing of Pitchers Sylvester (Blix) Donnelly, Lou Possehl and Don Johnston. Donnelly had a 5-7 record with the Phils in 1948; the others spent most of the season in the minors.

Only the Pittsburgh Pirates reported players returning unsigned contracts yesterday. General Manager Roy Hamey announced that Shortstop Stan Rojek and Second Baseman Danny Murtaugh have sent back their pacts unsigned, pending further discussions with the management. Both Rojek and Murtaugh insisted that they were not holdouts, however.

St. Louis—Mort Cooper, signed recently by Chicago, predicted he would win 20 games for the Cubs this season.

Columbus, O.—Frank Shaughnessy, president of the International league, advised minor league clubs to demand a 10-year contract before permitting their games to be televised.

Boston — The Boston Braves bought their home park, Braves field, from the James Gaffney estate. The purchase price was not announced.

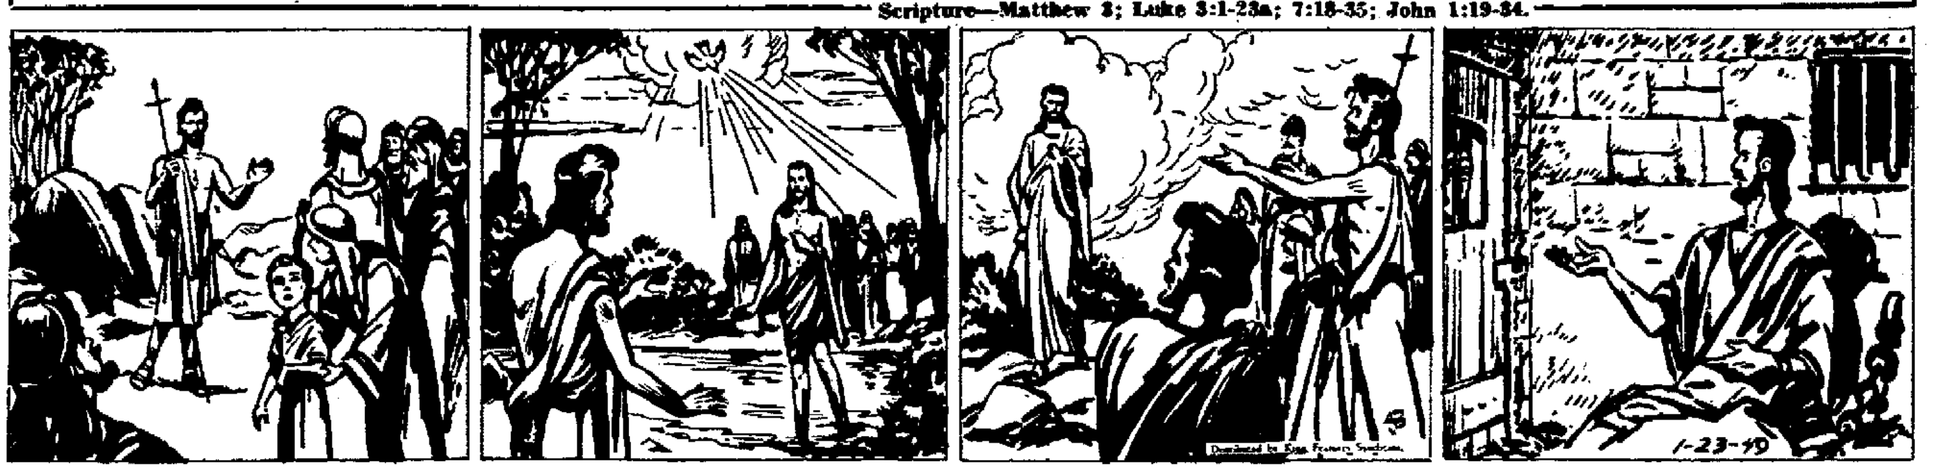
John the Baptist Begins His Ministry — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Matthew 3; Luke 3:1-23a; 7:18-35; John 1:19-34.



Distributed by King Features Syndicate
1-23-49

Coming out of the wilderness where he lived during his youth, John the Baptist began his ministry by preaching repentance of sins, and crowds of people followed him and many were baptized.

Jesus Himself came to John to be baptized; John said he was not worthy to baptize Him. Jesus insisted and "the heavens were opened and a voice said, This is My beloved Son."

People asked John who he was, and he told them, "I am the voice of one crying in the wilderness. Make straight the way of the Lord." Seeing Jesus, he cried, "Behold the Lamb of God."

John the Baptist reproved all who did wrong, whether of high or low degree, and when Herod Antipas sinned, John denounced his act, and was imprisoned.

Opens New Talk Series

Rev. Shook Speaks On 'Great Words'

Rev. Charles L. Shook, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, has announced a series of Sunday night sermons on the general theme "The Greatest Words in the Word and the World."

Tomorrow night, he will preach on the first phase, "The Saddest Word."

"The idea for this series was received from Dr. Clarence E. McCartney of Pittsburgh, Pa." Rev. Shook explained. "One feature of the series is that the actual 'word' will not be revealed until the sermon is preached."

"Worshippers will be given a clue in the Sunday's bulletin. They will be handed slips of paper as they enter the church in the evening. Upon these slips they will write their guesses as to the identity of the word. The slips will be collected in advance of the sermon and the words read by the pastor at the introduction of the sermon. Only the names of those who have given the right word will be announced."

Persons who have guessed the right word will be given an award, Rev. Shook said. Those who get five words of the series correct, will be given a pocket-size New Testament. The one who gets the most words correct will receive a Bible.

The sermon series is being preached in recognition of "Bible Year", the pastor said.
